Senator Byrd Urges Deep Budget Slash

Outlines Plan To Cut Spending By $7.1 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Finance Committee Chairman Harry F. Byrd called Thursday for a "minimum" cut of $7.1 billion in President Kennedy's spending budget and for a reduction of $12 billion in his requests for new money.

The economy leader from Virginia said that if Congress does not apply the knife, Kennedy will have authority to obligate and spend a total of $195.1 billion, including carry-over funds, in the fiscal year starting July 1.

"This sum is almost beyond comprehension," he said in offering his own 15-page budget analysis.

Byrd said his $7.1 billion spending cut would take $1.8 billion from military functions, $400 million from the space agency, $1.3 billion from foreign aid and $3.7 billion from various programs.

Byrd's economies would bring the Kennedy spending budget to $91.7 billion — still leaving a deficit of $2.1 billion. But he recommended this be met by selling excess stockpile materials in a way that would not disrupt the market on strategic materials.

Should Congress enact a substantial tax cut, however, the "virtual balance" Byrd described would lapse into another deficit.

The chairman of the Senate's tax-writing committee said some of the $87.2 billion in unspent balances "could and should be rescinded." He said this is particularly true of foreign aid carryover funds. With the $107.9 billion Kennedy requested in new money for the coming fiscal year, Byrd said the total available would be $195.1 billion.

Three American Generals Under Viet Cong Fire

SAIGON (UPI)—Three American generals came under Communist fire Wednesday during a battle in the Mekong River delta 175 miles south of Saigon.

One, Brig. Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell, 51, of Columbus, Ga., dragged several wounded Vietnamese soldiers to safety in the face of heavy automatic weapons fire and the explosions of Communist mortars a scant 25 yards away.

He is the son of "Vinegar Joe" Stillwell who led U. S. and Chinese troops in Burma during World War II.

The battle near Thoi Binh village in the northern Camau Peninsula cost the lives of 45 hardcore Communist soldiers, informed U. S. military sources in Saigon reported.

One American lieutenant has been wounded in the three - day engagement, which raged through its third day Thursday.

The generals who came under fire with Stillwell in Wednesday's engagement were Gen. Charles J Timmes, 55, of New York, chief of the Military Assistance and Advisory Group in Viet Nam (MAAG) and Brig. Gen. Robert R. Rowland, 45, of Lodi, Ohio, chief of MAAG's Air Force section.

The three generals, who had been observing the troops from a helicopter, decided to land in the village.

A few minutes after they did, Communist soldiers hidden nearby opened a counter-attack. The Reds apparently thought they were dealing with a single weak company of Vietnamese troops, instead of the three companies that actually were in the area.

McNamara Is Hailed As Great Economizer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strange but sweet music fell Thursday upon the ears of Robert S. McNamara, the buffeted secretary of defense.

He was hailed on Capitol Hill as a grand economizer, a man with a heart that feels for the taxpayer, a fellow determined to break the gold-plated buying habits of the Pentagon.

This was a switch because McNamara has been variously pictured lately as 1. a computer type who relies on civilian "whiz kids" to overrule the wisdom of military experts, 2. a man whose choice of a contractor for the wonder warplane, the TFX, is open to grave question.

The most hearty pat on the back came Thursday from white-thatched Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., an economist in private life. He is chairman of the Joint Senate-House Economic Committee. McNamara appeared before a subcommittee of this group to tell how he is trying to save billions.

This is a different committee from the McClellan Investigations subcommittee, which is putting McNamara through the hoops in the $6.5-billion TFX row.

"I personally," Douglas said, "consider you to be a great secretary of defense, a man who understands the intricate problems and has the courage to act on them."

McNamara read a 30-page statement reciting how, in the past, billions have gone more or less down the drain. The statement, though couched in big words not too easy to understand, was enough to leave a taxpayer mournful and, in the case of one comparatively minor item, could give a thoughtful layman the goose pimples.

It seems the Air Force spent $80 million on a decoy missile known as the Goose. The idea was that it would deceive hostile radar by making like a B52 bomber.

McNamara said the Goose project was killed off because once launched the bird could not be recalled to its home base as can a bomber. Thus, he said, it was "incompatible with the new concept of positive control."

It takes no imagination to figure out what might happen if this wild Goose winged its way toward the Russians and blithely ignored frantic cries from the Strategic Air Command: "Come back! Come back! The war scare was all a false alarm."

Sens. Douglas and William E. Proxmire, D-Wis., nodded approvingly when McNamara said he is charged by law with making decisions and, "I am doing so." Douglas said, "The country is very fortunate in your efforts."

McNamara smiled. This is the nearest he has come to displaying emotion since he said the other day he could see only harm resulting from the TFX inquiry.

Philadelphia Inquirer Typos Stage Walkout

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Inquirer failed to publish its first edition Thursday night as a result of a labor dispute in the composing room.

A spokesman for the International Typographical Union (ITU) Local No. 2 said 100 composing room workers walked out over the firing of John Scahan, a linotype operator and third vice chairman of the ITU local.

The Inquirer said that its first edition "was delayed by an illegal meeting" of members of the ITU in the composing room. The newspaper added that the meeting began at 4 p.m. and was still in progress at 7:30 p.m.

The union spokesman said Scahan was conducting union business in the shop when he was dismissed by the company. He said such business is permissible under the union contract.

The union said ITU and management representatives negotiated after Scahan was fired but no agreement was reached. He said the men walked out after holding a meeting in the composing room.

George Breidling, ITU chairman here, said "management would not give reasons for the firing. He added the men hope to return to work but "it's up to management."

Pierre Salinger Is Fighting Virus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House said Thursday Press Secretary Pierre Salinger is having a rough time fighting "some kind of virus" and all his engagements have been canceled for the rest of this week.

This involved canceling speeches and television appearances scheduled for Friday and Saturday in Indianapolis, Ind., and Chicago.

Acting Press Secretary Andrew T. Hatcher said Salinger was running a high temperature.

Estes Found Guilty Of Mail Fraud

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—The government convicted promoter Billie Sol Estes of four counts of mail fraud and one of conspiracy Thursday — exactly one year after the collapse of his flimsy financial empire.

U.S. Dist. Judge R. E. Thomason deferred sentencing until after a report by a probation officer. This was expected to take about two weeks.

Estes maintained a faint, almost ironic smile, throughout the return of the jury's verdict.

The jury of 10 men and two women acquitted Estes of eight other counts of mail fraud and one of transporting a fraudulent document in the mails.

Each of the five counts of conviction carries a maximum sentence of five years in a federal penitentiary. Judge Thomason could, if he wished, sentence Estes to 25 years in prison, or he could reduce these by ordering two or more of the sentences on each count to run concurrently.

Asked by a reporter what he thought of the verdict, Estes replied: "No comment."

Estes, 38, also is under state sentence for a term of eight years in prison.

British Labor Party Head To Meet With President

LONDON (AP)—Harold Wilson flies to Washington Friday to tell President Kennedy that a Labor government in Britain will cancel the purchase of Polaris missiles from the United States.

Wilson, newly elected leader of the opposition Labor party, makes his journey with the authority of a man who expects soon to become prime minister.

Among the sweeping changes in national policy his regime would make is backing away from Britain's attempt to remain an independent nuclear power. He also would work for arrangements to strengthen the pound-dollar relationship so that Britain's sterling money system would be able to count on U.S. protection during a period of economic expansion envisaged by labor.

Wilson knows Labor's nuclear policy will involve abandonment —or "denegotiation" — of Kennedy's pact with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan at Nassau last December to sell Polaris rockets to the British.

It also will impel a broad reappraisal of America's nuclear relations with the Atlantic allies. This is because the Nassau pact was the starting-point for the project to set up a North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear force.

$322 Million Credit Given Argentina

United States Moves To Bolster Nation's Stability

WASHINGTON (AP)—A $322-million credit package to help Argentina meet a critical balance-of-payments problem was announced here Thursday.

Coupled with $398 million in loans to Brazil announced Monday, it brought to more than $700 million the financial assistance extended this week in a determined effort to salvage economic and political stability for South America's two largest nations.

A State Department spokesman announced the International Monetary Fund will make available to Argentina $50 million through October 1963. The U.S. Treasury is extending for an additional four months an exchange agreement for $25 million.

Subject to completion of Argentine accords for $135 million with European creditors, the U.S. Export-Import Bank will, on parallel terms, refinance up to $92 million in Argentine debts to the bank and other U.S. creditors. The U.S. Agency for International Development will provide $20 million in fresh money.

The agreements were extended to cover the final months of the term of President Jose Maria Guido which ends next Oct. 12. He has promised to turn over power then to the winners of an election scheduled for June 27.

Guido has called on Argentina's political leaders to forget their disputes and unite behind a grand agreement to save the crisis-ridden nation.

Saturn Rocket Passes Fourth Straight Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) --The great Saturn rocket ended the first phase of its test program Thursday, blazing to its fourth straight success and demonstrating that it can function even with one of its eight engines dead.

The second half of a scheduled space doubleheader, the launching of the Explorer 17 research satellite, was postponed because of trouble with an atmospheric measuring device in the payload. The shot, which was scheduled for Thursday night, was put off until next Tuesday.

Saturn's inboard engine No. 5 was cut off deliberately after 100 seconds of powered flight to simulate a failure. The fuel intended for the shutdown engine automatically dispersed equally to the seven working engines. They burned two seconds longer than normal and the mammoth rocket completed its brief ballistic flight without a hitch.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported that all aspects of the flight were normal.

John Faulkner III Dies In Hospital

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Writer-painter John W. T. Faulkner III died Thursday at a hospital where he underwent surgery for a ruptured blood vessel of the stomach.

Faulkner, brother of the late Nobel Prize-winning novelist William Faulkner, had been in critical condition since Tuesday night.

The 61-year old Oxford, Miss., novelist entered the hospital 12 days ago. He had shown improvement after the operation but his condition worsened Tuesday.

Jets Fire Across U.S. Ship North Of Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two unidentified jet planes fired shots near an American vessel in international waters off the north coast of Cuba Thursday night, the State Department reported.

A terse State Department announcement said:

"The U.S. Coast Guard has reported the receipt of a message from the U.S. motor ship Floridian proceeding in international waters off the north coast of Cuba en route from San Juan, Puerto Rico, to Miami, Fla.

"The message reported that at approximately 6:05 p.m. Washington time today two unidentified jet aircraft had fired bursts across the Floridian's bow and stern without sinking the ship.

"Cinclant (commander in chief of the U.S. Atlantic Forces) immediately dispatched their jet fighters to the area.

"The Floridian, under U.S. air escort, is now proceeding toward Miami, where it is due at 7 a.m. tomorrow morning.

"Further details are expected to be available after the Floridian arrives in Miami."

State Department press officer Lincoln White, who issued the announcement, said he was unable to supply any further details at this time.

Last Feb. 20 a pair of MIG fighters fired near a U.S. shrimp boat, the Ala, while it was in international waters off the Cuban coast.

The United States vigorously protested the attack and said whatever measures necessary would be used to prevent such assaults in the future.

Academic Freedom Question Raised At Brandeis University

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — A British woman anthropologist, accused of voicing hope for American defeat—in the event of limited war—on the day the United States began its quarantine of Cuba last October, has resigned from Brandeis University, charging infringement of academic freedom.

Announcing his resignation simultaneously Wednesday, was Prof. David F. Aberle, head of the university's department of anthropology in which his wife, Kathleen Gough Aberle was an assistant professor. Brandeis says David Aberle is a U.S. citizen.

Dr. Abram L. Sachar, Brandeis president, had twice reprimanded Mrs. Aberle.

The first occasion was when he said she dismissed her classes to participate 18 months ago in a so-called peace march on the Army's Watertown Arsenal.

The second occasion was after Sachar said she had addressed a student audience "in a manner which, in my judgment, was dangerous, reckless and undisciplined."

Her speech was delivered two days after President Kennedy, addressing the nation on a matter of great national urgency, revealed the discovery of offensive missile sites in Cuba.

Alluding to Mrs. Aberle's comments Oct. 24 on the possibility of a limited war, Sachar said, "some of her statements, expressing hope for an American defeat and shame before the world were astonishing, especially from a faculty member."

Sachar's censure was based on the timing of her October speech. He said other faculty member speakers, who had been critical of U.S. government policies, "refrained from statements that were reckless and provocative." He also was critical of her release of classes on the occasion of the "peace march."

Committee Cuts Coal Research

WASHINGTON (UPI — The House Appropriations Committee slashed a budget request for $5 million for coal research to $3,200,000 Thursday and deferred action on a request for $2 million sought for development of a process for taking gasoline out of coal.

The funds were requested by the Office of Coal Research, set up last year to help the ailing coal industry by finding new uses for the fuel.

The money for the gasoline project were held up pending a review being conducted by the House Interior Committee. S. G. Lasky, assistant director of the research office, said the appropriation was to go to the Consolidation Coal Co.

In testimony before a House Interior subcommittee earlier this week, Lasky said Consolidation has a process for making gasoline out of coal "that appears to be competitive."

He said that if the federal government participates in the project, the process, when developed, would be available to the rest of the nation and no one would have patent ownership.

American Professor Weds Russian Girl Despite Soviet And Family Opposition

MOSCOW (AP) — The government, young Communists and her own mother opposed the wedding. But blonde Ruth Makarova wed Edgar Lehrman, a visiting U.S. professor at Moscow University, where she studied.

Both were nervous as they exchanged rings Thursday in the wedding palace, a Czarist mansion converted by Soviet authorities into a marriage center.

Student sources said the Young Communist League at the university tried furiously to estrange the two. The government demanded and got a certificate of sanity from Miss Makarova—as if questioning the sanity of any Soviet citizen who wanted to marry an American.

Friends said opposition also came from the bride's mother, widow of a writer for the government paper Izvestia. But they said the mother finally relented and, while too ill to attend the wedding, waited for the couple at Lehrman's quarters at the university.

Lehrman, 36, is visiting professor of literature. He is a member of the faculty at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., and plans to return to the States in September.

Miss Makarova, 24, slim and studious looking, wore an ankle-length white lace dress and carried a bouquet of red tulips as she arrived at the wedding palace.

The bridegroom, balding and a little haggard, wore a gray tweed suit and a striped, blue and white necktie.

In the wedding party were about 65 friends of the couple—foreign students at the university and officials of the U.S. Embassy, and Western news correspondents.

The couple marched into the marriage room to a recording of Tschaikovsky's First Piano Concerto, played by American pianist Van Cliburn.

Lehrman declined to discuss the obstacles to his marriage. Friends said he feared Soviet authorities might refuse permission for his wife to leave the country this fall.

Threatens Heavy Arms For Cubans

Says He Will Procur Bombers, Escort Fleet

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro threatened Thursday to arm Cuba with long-range bombers to counteract daredevil raids by Cuban exiles. He blamed the United States for an exile attack which crippled a Soviet freighter Tuesday night.

"If these attacks continue, Cuba will see herself in a situation of considering acquisition of long-range bombers as well as naval equipment necessary to escort our merchant ships, protect our supply lines and repel aggressors," Castro said in a communique.

Castro repeated his charges that counterrevolutionaries are using bases on American soil from which to launch their raids. He called State Department disapproval of such raids nothing but a smokescreen.

The threat of acquiring long-range bombers obviously harked back to the 750-mile-range jet bombers which Soviet Premier Khrushchev agreed to remove from Cuba together with medium-range missiles in the crisis last fall. The U.S. government said it counted 42 of the bombers and 42 of the missiles on ships leaving Cuba.

Castro said the Tuesday attack on the Soviet freighter Baku near the port of Caibarien on Cuba's north coast, 220 miles east of Havana, left the vessel "seriously damaged" and put the lives of Soviet crewmen in "grave danger."

The Soviet news agency Tass said that the ship was on the way to the Soviet Union with a cargo of sugar when it was attacked by a "piratic warship." The agency said the raiders fired a torpedo which blew a hole 13 feet by 1½ feet in the hold. It said the raiders also fired several shots from 20mm guns and sprayed the ship with machine-gun fire.

There were no mention of Soviet casualties.

In Miami, Fla., a spokesman for an anti-Castro group said the Soviet ship was left "badly in need of repairs to keep it from sinking." He said the raiders returned safely to their base "somewhere in the Caribbean."

The raid was the second exile attack on a Soviet freighter in Cuba this month. The first, on March 17, brought a Soviet accusation Wednesday that the United States was responsible.

N.Y. Engravers And Publishers To Meet Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Photoengravers President Frank A. McGowan, leader of the holdout union in the 111-day old New York newspaper strike, asked Thursday to reopen negotiations with the publishers and the publishers accepted.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who proposed the new contract terms rebellious rank - and - file union members turned down Wednesday night, because they want to work 15 minutes less each day, scheduled the meeting for Friday afternoon at City Hall.

The publishers earlier had said they would make no further concessions to the photoengravers.

Pressure from other newspaper unions, whose members were ready to return to work Wednesday night and put out the first editions since printers walked out triggered the marathon blackout on Dec. 8, was building up against the 320 holdout engravers.

Papers Spent $117 Million For Expansion In '62

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) reported Thursday that daily newspapers in the United States spent at least $117 million for plant expansion and modernization in 1962.

The association said the figure was based on a survey of 860 dailies. A survey of 43 Canadian dailies showed a capital outlay of $10.8 million for expansion and modernization.

The association said U.S. newspapers anticipated expenditure of $86 million for the same purposes next year and Canadian papers anticipate expenditure of $8.6 million.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Writer-painter John W. T. Faulkner III died Thursday at a hospital where he underwent surgery for a ruptured blood vessel of the stomach.

Faulkner, brother of the late Nobel Prize-winning novelist William Faulkner, had been in critical condition since Tuesday night.

The 61-year old Oxford, Miss., novelist entered the hospital 12 days ago. He had shown improvement after the operation but his condition worsened Tuesday.

Jets Fire Across U.S. Ship North Of Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two unidentified jet planes fired shots near an American vessel in international waters off the north coast of Cuba Thursday night, the State Department reported.

A terse State Department announcement said:

"The U.S. Coast Guard has reported the receipt of a message from the U.S. motor ship Floridian proceeding in international waters off the north coast of Cuba en route from San Juan, Puerto Rico, to Miami, Fla.

"The message reported that at approximately 6:05 p.m. Washington time today two unidentified jet aircraft had fired bursts across the Floridian's bow and stern without sinking the ship.

"Cinclant (commander in chief of the U.S. Atlantic Forces) immediately dispatched their jet fighters to the area.

"The Floridian, under U.S. air escort, is now proceeding toward Miami, where it is due at 7 a.m. tomorrow morning.

"Further details are expected to be available after the Floridian arrives in Miami."

State Department press officer Lincoln White, who issued the announcement, said he was unable to supply any further details at this time.

Last Feb. 20 a pair of MIG fighters fired near a U.S. shrimp boat, the Ala, while it was in international waters off the Cuban coast.

The United States vigorously protested the attack and said whatever measures necessary would be used to prevent such assaults in the future.

Academic Freedom Question Raised At Brandeis University

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — A British woman anthropologist, accused of voicing hope for American defeat—in the event of limited war—on the day the United States began its quarantine of Cuba last October, has resigned from Brandeis University, charging infringement of academic freedom.

Announcing his resignation simultaneously Wednesday, was Prof. David F. Aberle, head of the university's department of anthropology in which his wife, Kathleen Gough Aberle was an assistant professor. Brandeis says David Aberle is a U.S. citizen.

Dr. Abram L. Sachar, Brandeis president, had twice reprimanded Mrs. Aberle.

The first occasion was when he said she dismissed her classes to participate 18 months ago in a so-called peace march on the Army's Watertown Arsenal.

The second occasion was after Sachar said she had addressed a student audience "in a manner which, in my judgment, was dangerous, reckless and undisciplined."

Her speech was delivered two days after President Kennedy, addressing the nation on a matter of great national urgency, revealed the discovery of offensive missile sites in Cuba.

Alluding to Mrs. Aberle's comments Oct. 24 on the possibility of a limited war, Sachar said, "some of her statements, expressing hope for an American defeat and shame before the world were astonishing, especially from a faculty member."

Sachar's censure was based on the timing of her October speech. He said other faculty member speakers, who had been critical of U.S. government policies, "refrained from statements that were reckless and provocative." He also was critical of her release of classes on the occasion of the "peace march."

Committee Cuts Coal Research

WASHINGTON (UPI — The House Appropriations Committee slashed a budget request for $5 million for coal research to $3,200,000 Thursday and deferred action on a request for $2 million sought for development of a process for taking gasoline out of coal.

The funds were requested by the Office of Coal Research, set up last year to help the ailing coal industry by finding new uses for the fuel.

The money for the gasoline project were held up pending a review being conducted by the House Interior Committee. S. G. Lasky, assistant director of the research office, said the appropriation was to go to the Consolidation Coal Co.

In testimony before a House Interior subcommittee earlier this week, Lasky said Consolidation has a process for making gasoline out of coal "that appears to be competitive."

He said that if the federal government participates in the project, the process, when developed, would be available to the rest of the nation and no one would have patent ownership.

American Professor Weds Russian Girl Despite Soviet And Family Opposition

MOSCOW (AP) — The government, young Communists and her own mother opposed the wedding. But blonde Ruth Makarova wed Edgar Lehrman, a visiting U.S. professor at Moscow University, where she studied.

Both were nervous as they exchanged rings Thursday in the wedding palace, a Czarist mansion converted by Soviet authorities into a marriage center.

Student sources said the Young Communist League at the university tried furiously to estrange the two. The government demanded and got a certificate of sanity from Miss Makarova—as if questioning the sanity of any Soviet citizen who wanted to marry an American.

Friends said opposition also came from the bride's mother, widow of a writer for the government paper Izvestia. But they said the mother finally relented and, while too ill to attend the wedding, waited for the couple at Lehrman's quarters at the university.

Lehrman, 36, is visiting professor of literature. He is a member of the faculty at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., and plans to return to the States in September.

Miss Makarova, 24, slim and studious looking, wore an ankle-length white lace dress and carried a bouquet of red tulips as she arrived at the wedding palace.

The bridegroom, balding and a little haggard, wore a gray tweed suit and a striped, blue and white necktie.

In the wedding party were about 65 friends of the couple—foreign students at the university and officials of the U.S. Embassy, and Western news correspondents.

The couple marched into the marriage room to a recording of Tschaikovsky's First Piano Concerto, played by American pianist Van Cliburn.

Lehrman declined to discuss the obstacles to his marriage. Friends said he feared Soviet authorities might refuse permission for his wife to leave the country this fall.

British Labor Party Head To Meet With President

LONDON (AP)—Harold Wilson flies to Washington Friday to tell President Kennedy that a Labor government in Britain will cancel the purchase of Polaris missiles from the United States.

Wilson, newly elected leader of the opposition Labor party, makes his journey with the authority of a man who expects soon to become prime minister.

Among the sweeping changes in national policy his regime would make is backing away from Britain's attempt to remain an independent nuclear power. He also would work for arrangements to strengthen the pound-dollar relationship so that Britain's sterling money system would be able to count on U.S. protection during a period of economic expansion envisaged by labor.

Wilson knows Labor's nuclear policy will involve abandonment —or "denegotiation" — of Kennedy's pact with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan at Nassau last December to sell Polaris rockets to the British.

It also will impel a broad reappraisal of America's nuclear relations with the Atlantic allies. This is because the Nassau pact was the starting-point for the project to set up a North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear force.

Threatens Heavy Arms For Cubans

Says He Will Procur Bombers, Escort Fleet

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro threatened Thursday to arm Cuba with long-range bombers to counteract daredevil raids by Cuban exiles. He blamed the United States for an exile attack which crippled a Soviet freighter Tuesday night.

"If these attacks continue, Cuba will see herself in a situation of considering acquisition of long-range bombers as well as naval equipment necessary to escort our merchant ships, protect our supply lines and repel aggressors," Castro said in a communique.

Castro repeated his charges that counterrevolutionaries are using bases on American soil from which to launch their raids. He called State Department disapproval of such raids nothing but a smokescreen.

The threat of acquiring long-range bombers obviously harked back to the 750-mile-range jet bombers which Soviet Premier Khrushchev agreed to remove from Cuba together with medium-range missiles in the crisis last fall. The U.S. government said it counted 42 of the bombers and 42 of the missiles on ships leaving Cuba.

Castro said the Tuesday attack on the Soviet freighter Baku near the port of Caibarien on Cuba's north coast, 220 miles east of Havana, left the vessel "seriously damaged" and put the lives of Soviet crewmen in "grave danger."

The Soviet news agency Tass said that the ship was on the way to the Soviet Union with a cargo of sugar when it was attacked by a "piratic warship." The agency said the raiders fired a torpedo which blew a hole 13 feet by 1½ feet in the hold. It said the raiders also fired several shots from 20mm guns and sprayed the ship with machine-gun fire.

There were no mention of Soviet casualties.

In Miami, Fla., a spokesman for an anti-Castro group said the Soviet ship was left "badly in need of repairs to keep it from sinking." He said the raiders returned safely to their base "somewhere in the Caribbean."

The raid was the second exile attack on a Soviet freighter in Cuba this month. The first, on March 17, brought a Soviet accusation Wednesday that the United States was responsible.

N.Y. Engravers And Publishers To Meet Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Photoengravers President Frank A. McGowan, leader of the holdout union in the 111-day old New York newspaper strike, asked Thursday to reopen negotiations with the publishers and the publishers accepted.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who proposed the new contract terms rebellious rank - and - file union members turned down Wednesday night, because they want to work 15 minutes less each day, scheduled the meeting for Friday afternoon at City Hall.

The publishers earlier had said they would make no further concessions to the photoengravers.

Pressure from other newspaper unions, whose members were ready to return to work Wednesday night and put out the first editions since printers walked out triggered the marathon blackout on Dec. 8, was building up against the 320 holdout engravers.

Papers Spent $117 Million For Expansion In '62

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) reported Thursday that daily newspapers in the United States spent at least $117 million for plant expansion and modernization in 1962.

The association said the figure was based on a survey of 860 dailies. A survey of 43 Canadian dailies showed a capital outlay of $10.8 million for expansion and modernization.

The association said U.S. newspapers anticipated expenditure of $86 million for the same purposes next year and Canadian papers anticipate expenditure of $8.6 million.

Wm. Zantzinger Pleads Innocent In Murder Case

BALTIMORE (AP) — William D. Zantzinger, the Southern Maryland socialite indicted on a murder charge in the death of a barmaid, pleaded innocent Thursday in Baltimore Criminal Court.

Zantzinger's wife Jane also pleaded innocent to lesser charges as the couple was arraigned before Judge Charles D. Harris. No trial date was set.

Zantzinger, 24-year-old gentleman farmer, was indicted March 19 on a charge of murdering Mrs. Hattie Carroll, a Negro, by striking her with a cane at the Spinster's Ball last Feb. 9. She was tending bar at the dance at the Emerson Hotel.

Other indictments accused Zantzinger of assaulting a bellhop and waitress at the hotel and charged Mrs. Zantzinger with assaulting a policeman and disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace.

Zantzinger has been free under bond of $25,000 and his wife under bond of $1,500. They live at Mount Victoria, a 600-acre tobacco farm and estate in Charles County.

Zantzinger cannot be tried for at least 30 days. Judge Harris ruled Thursday the defense would have 15 days to file pre-trial motions and the state was given an equal amount of time to file replies.

Because the charge is murder Zantzinger's trial would be moved elsewhere automatically if defense counsel requested a change of venue. No such motion was made Thursday, however, although it has been expected.

Meanwhile, in Waldorf, a hearing for a Pennsylvanian charged with trying to extort $2,500 from Zantzinger was postponed Thursday until April 18.

The accused, William Edward Park, 39, of Toughkenamon, Pa., had been scheduled to appear before Trial Magistrate John Moore.

Park is charged with promising Zantzinger he could have charges against him reduced in exchange for $2,500. This was when Zantzinger was accused of homicide, before the indictment was returned.

John C. Hancock, Charles County state's attorney, said the hearing was postponed so Park's lawyer could investigate the case. Hancock agreed to the postponement.

Maryland Report On Fallout Given

BALTIMORE (AP) — A state radiological expert says only about 3 per cent of the radiation an average Marylander receives comes from atmospheric fallout.

Howard E. Chaney, radiologist for the State Health Department, says about 53 per cent of the radiation comes from medical and dental X-rays and fluoroscopes and about 40 per cent from natural sources, such as ground deposits.

Bombings Reported

GUATEMALA (AP) — A bomb, which police said was placed by antigovernment terrorists, blew out windows of the Maguen David synagogue in this Central American capital Wednesday night. Nobody was hurt.

Another bomb exploded outside the San Sebastian Roman Catholic church. No damage was done.

GLUE SNIFFER — Stanley Duncan, 19, was a prototype of the small town boy, never in trouble, a star athlete and well on his way to success as a farmer. Then his family found him dead, a victim of the juvenile glue sniffing fad. A relative said, "this could only happen in the New York slums, never in a small town." But it did.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Members of the Democratic National Committee will visit Baltimore Tuesday to look over convention facilities.

Baltimore is among 10 cities seeking to be host for the Democratic National Convention in 1964. Dr. Mildred Otenasek, Maryland's national committeewoman, said the choice would be made in May.

Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein is heading the effort to bring the convention to Maryland.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress sent to President Kennedy Thursday a bill allowing certain ground rent payments to be deducted for income tax purposes like mortgage interest.

The House took the final action by voice vote, accepting minor Senate amendments.

The measure affects especially portions of Maryland where this type of ground rent has been extensively developed as a means of financing home purchases.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The State Board of Public Welfare has announced new requirements for the $17,500-a-year post of State Welfare director, vacant since last Nov. 11.

The new requirements call for five years of professional welfare work but applicants need not be career welfare workers. The requirements said candidates need not be Maryland residents.

The post was made vacant by the death of Thomas J. S. Waxter.

EMMITSBURG, Md. (AP)—The Rev. Carl J. Fives has been named dean of academics at Mount St. Mary's College to fill the vacancy left by the late Rev. Francis P. Kearney.

Father Fives is a 1938 graduate of Mount St. Mary's and served as dean from 1949 until 1953 when he was named treasurer of the college. He is a native of Honesdale, Pa.

Ocean City Improvements Are Announced

Mayor Reports Plans For New Convention Hall

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Mayor Hugh Cropper has announced several major public improvement projects including the granting of a franchise for a convention hall.

Cropper said Thursday a franchise has been granted to Shore Development Corp. for a $1 million convention hall to be built on the beach near the inlet. Cropper said the company has four months to submit plans for approval by the city council.

The resort mayor also announced the Coast Guard plans to build a new station. Cropper said the station would be built along the lines of a motel and provide living facilities for 45 men.

The Army Corps of Engineers has decided to build a new jetty at the inlet to replace the old one which has been damaged by storms, Cropper said.

Meanwhile, Ocean City will build new bulkheads along the west side of Sinepuxent Bay to prevent further shoreline erosion.

Police Unable To Find Body Of Murder Victim

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP)—Police searched again unsuccessfully Thursday for the body of a Virginian which a Peoria, Ill., man says he dumped near Winchester.

Police said they covered almost 200 miles of secondary roads and lanes Wednesday in the search for Forrest Walker Hubbard, 42, of Arlington, Va., and resumed the search again Thursday.

Gary Leroy Humes, 21, of Peoria, told Hannibal Mo., police he shot Hubbard 10 days ago—when Hubbard gave him a ride—and placed the body on U. S. 50, five to 10 miles east of Winchester.

Sgt. F. L. Woolf of Virginia State Police said officers combed the area carefully without turning up the body. He said there are no efforts to bring Humes back here since Humes is charged with auto theft in Hannibal.

Who's On First?

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Things got a little confusing Wednesday night in the Maryland Senate.

After a set of amendments to one bill had been voted down, Sen. Joseph W. Alton Jr. arose to switch his vote.

The reading clerk called Alton's name to record his new vote on the bill.

Alton thought briefly, then asked: "How did I vote before?"

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today I'm wearing dark glasses to work for the second time in three months. Why? Because last night my husband opened the cupboard door and accidentally caught me right square in the eye.

No, he didn't hit me on purpose. He never does—or at least so he says. Since our marriage three years ago I've had four shiners, two loose teeth and numerous bruises. He's not mean, just careless.

The teeth loosening happened like this: He was helping me put away the canned goods. He dropped a can of sauerkraut on my face. Another time we were doing spring cleaning and the mop handle accidentally slipped out of his hand. I saw stars. Please tell me what I can do about this.

—LIVING DANGEROUSLY

DEAR LIVING—or should I say, Dear Lucky You Are Living: Has it ever occurred to you that these calamities all seem to happen when your husband is helping you with the housework?

It may be that he subconsciously resents doing housework and these accidents are his way of getting even. If you need help, hire a woman on a part-time basis. It's cheaper than store teeth.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 23 years old, not hard to look at and have never had any trouble attracting males.

About eight months ago, I broke up with a fellow I'd gone with for over a year. It was terribly hard on me because I was deeply in love with the guy.

Two months later one of his best friends asked me for a date. I accepted and made it plain that I was through with love for a while and that we would be just pals.

He has kept his part of the bargain beautifully — in fact TOO beautifuly. I wish now I hadn't said anything because I've fallen for him—and hard. But he shakes hands with me at the end of the evening—like in the receiving line at a church party. I honestly believe ours could be the longest kissless romance on record.

Another month of this brother-sister act and I'll crack up. Help! Please! —ANNABELLE

DEAR ANNABELLE: Since this young man seems to be an expert at following directions you'll have to let him know, subtly, of course, that the signals have been changed.

Tell him you've completely recovered from your heartache and that you want to give love another chance.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 22-year-old son was married two months ago. He and his lovely wife (who is also 22) live about 600 miles from here. He brought her to our home last weekend for the first time.

Now the problem: We showed movies after dinner—old family pictures taken over the last several years. There were a few minutes of an old reel which showed our son with a former girl friend.

The bride was terribly hurt and went to her room and cried. I say we were inconsiderate not to have anticipated this. My husband says she should have been adult about it. Our son snapped. "Why wasn't that reel thrown out?" Frankly nobody thought about it.

How can I make amends? I want our daughter-in-law to like us. This is a frightful beginning. Please help. —MRS. W. L. of VERO BEACH

DEAR W. L.: I see no reason for your daughter-in-law to have become unglued. Her reaction was immature. The girl who should be crying is the one in the old movie—not the happy bride.

Planing a wedding? Leave nothing to chance. ANN LANDERS' newest booklet, "The Bride's Guide," has all the answers (from announcing the engagement to "who pays for what"). To receive your copy, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35c in coin.

Living Costs Hit New High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Damage from winter crop freezes pushed the nation's living cost level last month back up to its highest point in history.

The Labor Department reported Wednesday its consumer price index rose by one-tenth of one per cent in February to reach 106.1 per cent of the 1957-59 average. This matched the peak of last September. Consumer costs now are about 1.2 per cent above a year ago.

The February increase was slight. It meant a market basket load costing $10 in the 1957-59 period cost $10.60 in January and $10.61 in February. Put another way, the 1957-59 dollar is now worth 94 cents.

Attack Oil Proposals

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy's proposal to impose higher taxes on oil profits came under attack from five state governors Wednesday, testifying at the final day of tax hearings by the House Ways and Means Committee, the five staff chief executives — four of them Republicans —urged outright rejection of the projected $280 million increase in taxes on oil and gas producers.

New Haven Line

WASHINGTON — A presidential commission has recommended that states and cities reimburse the bankrupt New Haven Railroad for passenger losses without any federal subsidies to the line. The long-awaited 70-page report said "there is no possible basis" for the New Haven to merge with another railroad until, its financial position is more stable.

Walking with grace depends on your co-ordination and balance. Improve yours this sure, easy way!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Improve Your Grace Through Co-Ordination

Jolts, jerks, or jiggles result if any part of your body fails to coordinate with the other parts. Grace only arises, for instance, when the movements of your arms and legs are synchronized so that they swing in opposite directions. Unless the left leg and the right arm swing out simultaneously the effect will be ungainly. Elementary as this may seem, it is a flagrant error of many women, particularly those who shun regular exercise or athletics.

Try this exercise to see how natural grace is to you. Stand on your right foot and swing the left leg forward with the knee relaxed and leading. At the same moment, swing your right arm forward and your left arm backward — vigorously. Then shift, swinging the left leg back sharply and extending the knee as far as you're able, simultaneously swinging the right arm back and the left forward repeat ten times with rythm and vigor. Then stand on your left foot and perform the exercise ten times more, reversing the swing of your arms on alternate sides until you tire. Practice this exercise daily and you'll find your co-ordination and grace creeping ahead at a handsome pace. Why? Because it also enhances your balance, control of which is the second skill required for a lovely walk.

It is the rare person who can attain flawless co-ordination and balance control the first time in doing this exercise. Achievement and ease is only gained through practice. When you find that you can change from one leg to the other without missing a beat, you can start to be proud of your walking grace. It will be well above average if you can — that is the test of your prowess.

Every man's hat is off to a graceful lady — and every woman's eye is on her, too!

School Board President Discusses Dropout Problem

J. Goodloe Jackson, president of the Allegany County Board of Education, Wednesday spoke on the problem of student "dropouts" from the high schools.

His talk, which he cited as his own viewpoint and not necessarily the views of the other members of the school board, was made at a dinner session of the Men's Club of First Presbyterian in the church social hall.

Jackson said the blame for "dropouts" is usually placed upon the schools and they are trying, with little success, to solve the problem. There are two reasons given in cases of "dropouts", Jackson stated. One is that the curriculum is too exacting for the below average student, hence he is doomed to failure; or, to the other extreme, the curriculum is not challenging enough for the above average student, resulting in a loss of interest and a dropout.

There is the view among some that vocational schools should be provided for the below-average student unable to carry a full academic load. Yet there are many educators and others who maintain that a certain amount of stigma is attached to a youth who is weeded out of the conventional high school in this manner.

Jackson used statistics from the school year ending June 30, 1961 to outline the problem facing not only schools but the citizens as well. In the 23 counties and Baltimore City during that school year there were 13,715 students who dropped out. This was 5.6 per cent of the total high school enrollment for that year.

Jackson said the picture in Allegany County is much better than that of the overall state experience. During the year ending June 30, 1961 there were 426 students who withdrew from high school. Of this number, 165 dropped out upon reaching the 16 years of age requirement. There were 40 who dropped out because of marriage. There were 100 who transferred to systems outside the county and 61 others to other schools in the county.

"We might concern ourselves with the 165 who dropped out because they reached the legal age limit for attendance in school and the 40 who considered marriage more important than remaining the final two years in school," Jackson stated.

Jackson gave some figures for major characteristics of the dropouts.

The largest percentage dropped out due to the 16 years age limit requirement. The figures show 46.8 per cent of the boys and 44.9 per cent of the girls were in this category.

More girls than boys drop out of school before age 16. The girls' percentage was 18.3 and the boys 10.5. Lack of interest, or 35.3 per cent, caused one-third of the dropouts.

Other Reasons Listed

The smallest percentage, or 1.3 percent, dropped out because of social maladjustment. About half of the dropouts, or 49.8 per cent, were average or above average in mental ability.

Lack of scholastic success caused 17.8 per cent of dropouts. Almost half, or 47.5 per cent, failed three or more subjects, but approximately one-fourth or 26.3 per cent, had no failures.

Seven out of 10 dropouts did not participate in athletics nor in extra-curricular activities. In one fourth of the cases, both parents were employed.

Jackson said that the concern should also be extended beyond the dropouts from high school to the fact that many high school graduates do not pursue their education to the college level.

NAACP Youth Group Organizes

A Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was organized at a meeting Wednesday at the City Hall.

More than 30 persons attended the meeting, and the following officers were elected: Huston Leath, president; Valerie Barnes, vice president; Carol Pope, secretary; Carol Hurt, assistant secretary, and Wilma Carter, treasurer.

Bernard Miles and Mary Lee were named to handle public relations for the new organization. Wednesday's meeting was conducted under the supervision of officers of the local NAACP chapter.

The next meeting of the Youth Council was tentatively set for the week of April 7-13, with details to be announced later.

In preparing for the inspection, members of the Advisory Council on Naval Affairs (ACONA), made up of civilian community leaders, have been planning for the inspection party's arrival here on Tuesday, April 2.

Dinner has been scheduled for Tuesday at 7 p. m. at the Cumberland Country Club. Among those who will be in attendance are officers of the Surface Division, Lt. Cmdr. Gallo, Cmdr. Paul M. Arbogast, commanding officer of Mobilization Team 5-2; Cmdr. Gerard P. Calhoun, commanding officer of Naval Reserve Construction Battalion 5-7, Capt. Richard J. Williams, medical officer, Lt. (j.g.) James Maguire, appropriate duty supply officer; and Cmdr. Wayne W. Hill, the commandant's local representative; Cmdr. A. W. Tiedemann Jr., commanding officer of Division 5-9.

Also scheduled to attend will be members of ACONA; William H. Geppert, who serves as chairman, Ralph R. Webster, Walter N. Hedrick, William L. Wilson Jr., and J. Glenn Beall Jr.

ACONA members are appointed by the commandant of the Fifth Naval District and form a nucleus of leading public figures interested in Naval Reserve to help with public relations for the reserve program and assisting the Navy in performing a creditable service in the community.

The council also coordinates other Naval affairs such as Navy contracts with local industry and it furnishes advice to the commandant on anything pertaining to the Navy place in the Cumberland community, Lt. Cmdr. Gallo added.

Living Costs Hit New High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Damage from winter crop freezes pushed the nation's living cost level last month back up to its highest point in history.

The Labor Department reported Wednesday its consumer price index rose by one-tenth of one per cent in February to reach 106.1 per cent of the 1957-59 average. This matched the peak of last September. Consumer costs now are about 1.2 per cent above a year ago.

The February increase was slight. It meant a market basket load costing $10 in the 1957-59 period cost $10.60 in January and $10.61 in February. Put another way, the 1957-59 dollar is now worth 94 cents.

Attack Oil Proposals

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy's proposal to impose higher taxes on oil profits came under attack from five state governors Wednesday, testifying at the final day of tax hearings by the House Ways and Means Committee, the five staff chief executives — four of them Republicans —urged outright rejection of the projected $280 million increase in taxes on oil and gas producers.

New Haven Line

WASHINGTON — A presidential commission has recommended that states and cities reimburse the bankrupt New Haven Railroad for passenger losses without any federal subsidies to the line. The long-awaited 70-page report said "there is no possible basis" for the New Haven to merge with another railroad until, its financial position is more stable.

Walking with grace depends on your co-ordination and balance. Improve yours this sure, easy way!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Improve Your Grace Through Co-Ordination

Jolts, jerks, or jiggles result if any part of your body fails to coordinate with the other parts. Grace only arises, for instance, when the movements of your arms and legs are synchronized so that they swing in opposite directions. Unless the left leg and the right arm swing out simultaneously the effect will be ungainly. Elementary as this may seem, it is a flagrant error of many women, particularly those who shun regular exercise or athletics.

Try this exercise to see how natural grace is to you. Stand on your right foot and swing the left leg forward with the knee relaxed and leading. At the same moment, swing your right arm forward and your left arm backward — vigorously. Then shift, swinging the left leg back sharply and extending the knee as far as you're able, simultaneously swinging the right arm back and the left forward repeat ten times with rythm and vigor. Then stand on your left foot and perform the exercise ten times more, reversing the swing of your arms on alternate sides until you tire. Practice this exercise daily and you'll find your co-ordination and grace creeping ahead at a handsome pace. Why? Because it also enhances your balance, control of which is the second skill required for a lovely walk.

It is the rare person who can attain flawless co-ordination and balance control the first time in doing this exercise. Achievement and ease is only gained through practice. When you find that you can change from one leg to the other without missing a beat, you can start to be proud of your walking grace. It will be well above average if you can — that is the test of your prowess.

Every man's hat is off to a graceful lady — and every woman's eye is on her, too!

School Board President Discusses Dropout Problem

J. Goodloe Jackson, president of the Allegany County Board of Education, Wednesday spoke on the problem of student "dropouts" from the high schools.

His talk, which he cited as his own viewpoint and not necessarily the views of the other members of the school board, was made at a dinner session of the Men's Club of First Presbyterian in the church social hall.

Jackson said the blame for "dropouts" is usually placed upon the schools and they are trying, with little success, to solve the problem. There are two reasons given in cases of "dropouts", Jackson stated. One is that the curriculum is too exacting for the below average student, hence he is doomed to failure; or, to the other extreme, the curriculum is not challenging enough for the above average student, resulting in a loss of interest and a dropout.

There is the view among some that vocational schools should be provided for the below-average student unable to carry a full academic load. Yet there are many educators and others who maintain that a certain amount of stigma is attached to a youth who is weeded out of the conventional high school in this manner.

Jackson used statistics from the school year ending June 30, 1961 to outline the problem facing not only schools but the citizens as well. In the 23 counties and Baltimore City during that school year there were 13,715 students who dropped out. This was 5.6 per cent of the total high school enrollment for that year.

Commission Plans Potomac River Tour

The Cumberland spring meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin May 8-9 will be devoted to an all-day tour and an all-day conference on waste treatment programs in the North Branch drainage basin.

The tour will range from Green Spring upstream to the Savage River Dam and the site of the proposed Bloomington Dam.

Visits will include such points as the Cumberland Plant of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company which has its own sewage disposal plant and waste water sediment basins; the Cumberland sewage treatment plant, Amcelle Plant of Celanese Corporation, and the waste treatment plant at Westernport operated by the Upper Potomac River Commission.

For the followup conference the following day, local interests will be invited to discuss the present status of waste treatment facilities in the upper North Branch basin and plans for the immediate and foreseeable future.

Among the topics scheduled for discussion is the proposed county-wide waste handling program for Allegany County.

State and local officials of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia will be asked to participate.

Although the sessions will be open to the public, the meeting will not be for public education only.

Rather, the primary purpose will be to give the interests concerned the opportunity to study problem areas of the North Branch first hand and then to confer on them.

The interstate commission also pointed out that the Bloomington Dam, designed for flood control, low-flow implementation and recreation benefits, is being given top priority by the Corps of Army Engineers in its basin-wide water resources development program.

The sum of $100,000 for preconstruction planning has been included in President Kennedy's public works budget for fiscal year 1964 which starts in July.

Total planning costs of the $51,000,000 project comes to $1,500,000, of which the requested $100,000 is the first installment.

Garbage Collector Will Pick Up Lawn, Garden Debris

The spring lawn and yard cleanup brought this word of advice from the Street Department today: Don't sweep leaves, grass or other material into the streets.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, street commissioner, said several complaints had been received from residents who had swept grass or leaves into the street and protested the fact that the sweeper or a city crew had not removed them.

Sweepings from yards should be placed in garbage cans or baskets and will be collected by the city's garbage contractor on regular collection nights, she said.

J. J. Riley of the R and R Sanitation Company, the garbage contractor, confirmed that lawn sweepings or debris from the lawns would be collected. He urged that they be placed in containers and not packed too tightly which would cause a problem of emptying them and delay collectors. He also said care should be taken to see that each individual container was not too heavy for easy disposal.

Mrs. Roeder said plans are in the making for the annual week-long Cleanup Campaign the latter part of April and first of May. She urged residents to start preparing for the event, clearing and packaging accumulated trash, and to watch for announcements of pickup days.

In some cases, debris is of such magnitude that local residents may want to burn it.

A permit is necessary, according to Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker. Inspector John Trost said that where a burning permit is desired, the resident should call the department. An inspection of the area will be made and if found safe, a permit will be issued.

Sweepings from yards should be placed in garbage cans or baskets and will be collected by the city's garbage contractor on regular collection nights, she said.

J. J. Riley of the R and R Sanitation Company, the garbage contractor, confirmed that lawn sweepings or debris from the lawns would be collected. He urged that they be placed in containers and not packed too tightly which would cause a problem of emptying them and delay collectors. He also said care should be taken to see that each individual container was not too heavy for easy disposal.

Mrs. Roeder said plans are in the making for the annual week-long Cleanup Campaign the latter part of April and first of May. She urged residents to start preparing for the event, clearing and packaging accumulated trash, and to watch for announcements of pickup days.

In some cases, debris is of such magnitude that local residents may want to burn it.

A permit is necessary, according to Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker. Inspector John Trost said that where a burning permit is desired, the resident should call the department. An inspection of the area will be made and if found safe, a permit will be issued.

Baptist Church Plan Revival On Sunday

Rev. Archie McIntyre, pastor, said Herman Snoots, president of the brotherhood, is directing the visitation project in which each family in the area is contacted for church prospects.

The revival services will be held daily at 7:30 p. m., with Rev. Charles Barnes, of Severna Park, as the evangelist. Music for the services will be under direction of Mrs. William Riffle, and song leaders will be Charles Plummer and Jean Knippenberg.

Other music during the week will be by the Junior Choir of LaVale Baptist Church, the Adult Choir of Kingsley Methodist Church, and the Junior and Adult choirs of Memorial Heights Church.

The Brotherhood is promoting Monday's services as Men's Night, according to the pastor, who said 24 men have been assigned to "pack a pew" for the services. The men also will form the choir for the services, with additional music by Jean Knippenberg and David Grapes. James Hager will be soloist.

Church organizations are promoting attendance on specified nights, the pastor said. Tuesday will be observed as Young Peoples Night; Wednesday, Family Night; Thursday, W.M.U. Night, and Friday, Sunday School.

A diamond was led to the jack and East was in with the ace. On a heart return, South finessed the nine losing to West's jack and another heart cleared the suit. When the diamonds failed to break, declarer discovered that he was still a trick short. After running the spades, he led a club, but West put up the ace and still had enough hearts left to sink the contract.

Declarer's timing had been faulty. After the first trick produces the ten, king, and ace of hearts, he has a tenace remaining in the queen-nine which is safe from further attack on his left. He should therefore endeavor to keep his right hand opponent out of the lead while he does his preliminary work.

He has six sure tricks with ample additional tricks if diamonds break evenly. If the suit does not respond, however, he will still be a trick short, and if East has the ace of diamonds a lead thru South's heart holding may prove fatal.

Declarer should begin to work on the clubs first, for this is a suit that he can develop with impunity. It is suggested that he cross to the ace of spades at trick two in order to play a small club. If East has the ace, he cannot afford to put it up, for by so doing he will establish three tricks in the suit for South. If declarer succeeds in sneaking thru one club, he can afford to switch his attention to the diamonds.

When the first club lead actually loses to the ace on his left, South is still in good shape, for West cannot attack the hearts profitably, and declarer has ample time to work on the diamonds.

Rare Complaint

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A man walked into the Pima County assessor's office in Tucson and said he had a complaint.

A weary clerk braced himself and asked, "What's the trouble?"

The man answered, "I been paying taxes on 37 acres of land. Just had a survey made. I really own 40 acres. I wish you would correct your figures so I can pay my fair share."

Cresaptown Resident Wins Award For Art

Adrian Clem of Cresaptown has won second prize in the oil painting entries in the 31st annual exhibition of Cumberland Valley Artists sponsored by the Washington County Museum of Fine Arts, Hagerstown.

This year's competition received more entries than any other year. Of the 394 entries, 103 original works in oil, tempora, water color, sculpture and graphic media were chosen by the judges to be hung in the galleries during April.

A public reception will be held Sunday from 3 to 5 p. m. in the museum, for the opening of the exhibition.

Clem won second museum prize of $50 for his painting entitled "Voyagers".

In the Tri-State Art Show sponsored at Allegany Community College by the Cumberland Branch of the American Association of University Women, Clem won first prize in the oil division with his entry, "Picnic Hill".

He has been a frequent prize winner in the tri-state show in recent years.

Clem, who was graduated from the Maryland Institute of Art, Baltimore, has been employed for the past 11 years as a technical illustrator for Allegany Ballistics Laboratory.

A number of his paintings have appeared in Hercules Powder Company's monthly magazine which goes to employes.

Judges for this year's Hagerstown show were Theodore P. Foote, supervisor of art education for Allegany County Board of Education; Thomas M. Beggs, director of the National Collection of Fine Arts, and James G. A. Murphy, artist, teacher and past president of the Baltimore water-color Society.

Well, Well

CEROBA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Farmer Velicko Icelic has in his yard a well with strange moods. Icelic, though he doesn't understand it, likes it.

In winter, when the countryside is sodden from rains and snow, the well goes completely dry. In summer, when the sun-scorched ground shrivels and cracks for lack of moisture, the well provides fresh cold water.

Allegany Camper Club Makes Plans For Events

The executive board of the Allegany Campers Club met Wednesday in the high school library with Fred A. Hutcheson, president, presiding.

Miss Carol Petry, representing the Allegewi yearbook staff, and Miss Polly Lowe, Alcohi Mirror (newspaper) thanked the club for its part in making possible their recent trip to the journalism conference at Columbia University, New York City. Fourteen members of the yearbook and newspaper staff, accompanied by Miss Betsy Ross Rankin, advisor, attended. The Alcohi Mirror was awarded first place honors for the junior-senior high school division.

The club also received a letter of thanks from Miss Dorothy Willison, music instructor, for its financial assistance in sending Richard Lehr as a representative from Allegany to Atlantic City to participate in the All-Eastern Choir. Lehr also sent a letter of thanks.

S. Lua Syckes announced that the Allegany Band would participate in the Maple Festival parade at Meyersdale Saturday and Charles Merril gave a membership committee report.

Mrs. John Blake and Mrs. William Aumiller, co-chairmen of social activities, reported on the annual graduation night dance plans and it was decided to hold the event in the Cotillion Room of Cumberland Lodge 63, B. P. O. Elks June 12 with the John Ritchie orchestra playing for dancing.

Mrs. William Brady, Ways and Means Committee chairman, announced a "220 Club" will be started in the near future. A discussion on the All Sports Dinner in May also was held.

Miss Carol Alt presented the secretary's report and the report of Carl Belt, treasurer, was read.

The next meeting will be April 24 and is open to all members of the club.

The club was founded in 1950 and is comprised of parents, alumni and friends of Allegany. Its purpose is to encourage support of high school activities and, in general, aid in developing a vital force in the lives of students, teachers and the community. The group purchases band uniforms and cheerleader costumes, holds sports dinners, presents scholastic awards, supports athletic and coaching activities, aids school publications projects. Funds are raised by dances, football program sales and advertising, club members, basketball programs and school souvenirs.

Windjammers were used as cargo ships long after steam replaced sail. In the 1930s, sailing ships loaded with Australian grain regularly made the blustery voyage around Cape Horn to England. About 20 ships joined the rigorous grain trade, engaging in "races" that took as long as 138 days.

Rare Complaint

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A man walked into the Pima County assessor's office in Tucson and said he had a complaint.

A weary clerk braced himself and asked, "What's the trouble?"

The man answered, "I been paying taxes on 37 acres of land. Just had a survey made. I really own 40 acres. I wish you would correct your figures so I can pay my fair share."

Plankton, made up of microscopic sea life, is so plentiful in Antarctic waters that it stains the ice shades of rose, brownish, pink and yellow.

County May Get Authority To Establish Regulations On Building Codes

The Allegany County Commissioners will have the authority to set up plumbing, building and housing codes under a bill enacted in the State Senate Wednesday.

House Bill 580, sponsored by the county delegation, goes to Gov. J. Millard Tawes for his signature into law.

It states that the commissioners may provide regulations for the issuance of plumbing permits and also have the power to adopt a plumbing code.

In addition, the board will be the authority to enact a building code and a housing code for this county.

The State Senate also enacted three bills pertaining to voting machines and their maintenance.

HB 744 provides that the custodians of voting machines in this county shall file certificates with the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors relating to the condition of machines prior to an election.

HB 745 prohibits repairs or adjustments to the machines during an election except by a custodian or deputy custodian.

HB 746 requires that custodians and deputy custodians shall take training courses in the operation and repair of the machines at the plants where they are manufactured.

The Senate also enacted HB 493 sponsored by the Garrett County delegation which authorizes the Garrett County Commissioners to regulate speed and weight of vehicles on county roads which are not part of the state or federal highway system.

On Tuesday, the House enacted SB 432 which reconstitutes the Allegany County Sanitary Commission.

A new board of seven members will be appointed June 1 by the County Commissioners. It will include the present three members plus four new ones.

The House also enacted HB 481 sponsored by Sen. George R. Hughes Jr. which repeals obsolete Allegany County laws relating to certain payments to railroads and mining operations.

Senate Bill 333 sponsored by Sen. Spencer Graham of Garrett County was enacted and it provides that non-resident property owners in Garrett County may obtain resident angler's licenses for the Youghiogheny River Reservoir and the Savage River Dam waters.

HOUSTON, Tex. Tax Deduction Set For Flood Victims

Flood-stricken residents of Preston and Tucker counties are among those of 27 counties of West Virginia who received encouraging news Wednesday from the Internal Revenue Service.

Nathaniel Looker, district director, said the IRS will expedite refunds to storm and flood disaster victims claiming special casualty loss benefits. He said taxpayers who have not yet filed the 1962 return may elect to claim the March 1963, disaster loss deduction on the original 1962 return.

Those who have already sent in their 1962 returns may amend them or claim for refund to reflact the disaster loss deduction.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Polly Bergen moves into the third starring role in "Something's Got To Give," joining Doris Day and James Garner at 20th Century - Fox. What's more, both Polly and Doris play the "wife" of Jim Garner. Doris, who is presumed dead, returns to find that her husband has married Polly.

This marks a great change in pace for the versatile Miss Polly, who has done two stark dramatic films in a row—"Cape Fear" and "The Caretakers." Polly was signed by producers Aaron Rosenberg and Marty Melcher, who have completely changed the story from the ill-fated picture that originally was slated with Marilyn Monroe, Dean Martin and Cyd Charisse. It starts April 29 with Michael Gordon directing.

That country and western album which Dean Martin made about six months ago is one of his most successful ventures and is the reaon he's preparing to do a new one for Reprise records. This one will be something special, however. It will be done as a tribute to the three great country and western singers, Hawkshaw Hawkins, Cowboy Copas and Patsy Cline, who were killed in a plane crash recently in Nashville, while returning from playing a benefit in Kansas City.

Like all horse owners, Gregory Peck can't stand not seeing his thoroughbred Owens Sedge run in the Irish sweepstakes. So he has talked his Universal bosses into letting him plane out March 29 for Aintree Race Track to see how his nag does in the big event. At current quotations, Greg's hoss is the second favorite.

It will certainly be a pleasure for Dick Chamberlain—Dr. Kildare—to introduce Clara Ray when she makes her debut as a singer at the rendezvous room of the Beverly Hilton Hotel on April 2. Clara had a big offer to New York, but she's a smart a smart girl and didn't leave Dick.

Not that I think she's in any immediate danger of losing him, because when I had my picture taken with the two of them at the premiere of "How The West Was Won," I never saw two young people more in love. And Dick, I would like to say right here, is one of the nicest of the successful young actors.

Whatever fault may be found with Marlon Brando, and some people find many, he can never be accused of not giving newcomers a break in his pictures, particularly if they are pretty girls. To mention a few, there was Tarita in "Mutiny," Sandra Church in "Ugly American" and now comes Francine York.

Francine gets the part of the Italian charmer Gina (not Lollobrigida) i "King of the Mountain" with Marlon and David Niven at Universal. It's by far her biggest break although she is appearing in Jerry Lewis' "Nutty Professor."

Talk about a name from the past—after 15 years away from Hollywood but still in show business with her one-woman act touring the country, Virginia Sale is back in town—and with a big-movie job. Frank Ross has signed her for "The Norman Vincent Peale Story" starring Don Murray and Virginia says she feels right at home as she comes from seven generations of Methodist ministers.

Woman Files Unusual Suit

Margaret Nave yesterday filed a damage suit against the former First National Bank and Trust Company and the new First-Second National Bank and Trust Company as executor of the estate of Mrs. Nina D. Lichtenstein, who died January 3 at the County Infirmary.

In the suit, filed in Allegany County Circuit Court, it was stated that the bank, as executor of Mrs. Lichtenstein's estate, is responsible for her debts and obligations.

Mrs. Nave, who said she was a former neighbor of Mrs. Lichtenstein, explained that the latter was not able to look after her needs. Mrs. Nave contends that she acted as chauffeur for Mrs. Lichtenstein, bought her groceries, prepared her meals and medicine and performed other services. After the latter went to the County Infirmary she visited her nightly.

She asserted that on a number of occasions Mrs. Lichtenstein stated that she was leaving $20,000 in her will to Mrs. Nave. However, when the will was probated January 15 in Orphans Court she was left only $500.

The Clay Report On Foreign Aid

Few will quarrel with the Clay committee's conclusion that the U. S. foreign aid program is "attempting to do too much for too many" and could accomplish more with less. That is what practical men have been saying for years.

Over the 17 years it has poured $100 billion into overseas assistance the program has sprawled into a catch-all of diverse and uncertain objectives. Projects with initial merit have been continued beyond need. Loose administration has further contributed to the waste.

Emphasis has shifted from Europe, where aid received a rapid and productive response, to nations whose foundations are flimsy and capabilities are uncertain. The Clay committee set enough guideposts to point the way to substantial improvement. To cite a few:

Don't use funds to impress foreign sovereigns, forestall Soviet aid or gamble on keeping a regime in power.

Stop bailing out debts of nations that borrow at higher rates elsewhere.

Cut back military aid to those able to pay their way.

Focus on countries with a will to be free and help themselves.

That much is wrong with the program is evident in the fact that a committee finds it necessary to make these recommendations.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

The Right Climate

There are more people at work in the American economy than ever before—66.4 million in fact. Nevertheless, unemployment, now estimated at 6.1 per cent of the working force, is on the increase. With the population trend-line up, both President Kennedy and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz are absolutely right when they say that the economy must expand at a much faster pace if it is to absorb the droves of young people who will be graduating from school and college in the late Nineteen Sixties and the Seventies.

The problem, however, is not entirely what Secretary Wirtz seems to think it is. The Secretary speaks of the need to give young people skills—and by this he means skills that can be translated into jobs on the factory floor. The response of the New Frontier to the unemployment situation has been to call for more government-fostered industrial training programs. But this, in an age of growing automation, is somewhat beside the point. Insofar as teaching young people to set the "programs" for automated equipment and to see to it that complicated production lines do not break down, this is something that industry can do very well for itself. Indeed, industry has been doing it for a long time now, as anyone who is acquainted with the training programs of such companies as General Electric or the Ford Motor Company must know.

The dilemma of the economy in 1963 is that it must find ways of increasing employment without adding significantly to factory payrolls. For ten years now the trend of factory employment, when put on a graph, has made a relatively neat horizontal line. The employment in the service industries, however, has been leaping upward. The only trouble is that the growing "scissors" gap between the two lines on the graph has not been sufficiently wide to take care of all our young job seekers.

With practically every industry on the prowl for better methods of automation, it is a dead cinch that there will be little change in the factory employment trend line. The product of industry will grow, but the work force will remain relatively stationary. So it is up to the service trades to absorb young people. But this involves inventing new services that we do not already have—and by its very nature the problem is something that the government cannot solve directly.

The issue is one of creativity—and creativity, in turn, is something that comes out of a stimulating environment. Well, just how much stimulation do you get out of sending young men out in Civilian Conservation Corps groups to clean up the woods? When they come back from the woods, they have learned nothing that they haven't already learned as Boy Scouts.

How much stimulation comes from training a young man at running a machine when he knows that a system of tape controls will take away his job the day after he gets it? The truth is that a climate of politically administered welfarism and politically dominated make-work is not going to help expand the service trades at all. What we need is a society in which people can keep their own money to spend on all sorts of fanciful and inventive things. More luxuries, more travel. We also need a society in which purchasing power ceases to be destroyed by inflation. As President Kennedy insists, we need lower taxes. But as the President does not seem to know, we also need a cut in government spending looking toward a balance in the budget.

With money in their pockets, and with a feeling that they will continue to be paid in the future in a stable coin, people will buy the darndest services. An example? I give you the Sidney Printing and Publishing Company of Sidney, Ohio, which publishes a weekly hobby journal, "Coin World," for numismatists. "Coin World" runs to more than a hundred pages some weeks, and has a masthead of employees almost as long as your arm. A drop in the bucket of "service"? Maybe so, but it is going to take thousands of such drops if the U.S. is to solve its unemployment situation. Factory employment just isn't going to do the job. Imaginative people will do it if they have a feeling that it is worth their while.

Economic Facts And The 35-Hour Work Week

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—What's a "35-hour week"? Union labor is all for it, and at first glance it seems a wonderful thing not to have to work 40 hours but only 35. But what are the facts?

In the first place, union labor wants the same pay for 35 hours as for 40. In the second place, the practical effect is that almost always the same employes—not the unemployed—get the extra money whenever work is extended beyond 35 hours.

The unions, moreover, insist that double payment be made for each hour above 35, instead of the usual hour-and-a-half pay for one hour of overtime work. All this would mean an increase of hundreds of millions of dollars in industry's labor costs. The change from 40 to 35 hours with no reduction in weekly pay would increase labor costs 14 per cent. If overtime also is involved, still further increases would result.

These simple statements tell the real story about what's wrong with the trend of the national economy today and why President Kennedy's prediction of a "decade of recession" is likely to come true, even if a tax cut is granted by Congress.

Mr. Kennedy has made occasional references to the 35-hour week and has taken a position opposite to the AFL-CIO, which is demanding it. The AFL-CIO unions, however, have a powerful weapon available. They can get the 35-hours week—and in some trades now are obtaining it—by the usual process of extortion through strikes or threats of strikes, euphemistically called "collective bargaining."

The public generally doesn't know what a 35-hour week would mean. Not only would this work schedule fail to absorb the unemployed of today, but it would not make new jobs for the millions of young workers coming into the labor market each year.

The overtime problem is the real reason. A company that operates on one shift, for instance, of eight hours a day for five days a week cannot hire new workers to take care of an hour or two of work each day after the regular shift finishes. It is natural to use the existing personnel and to pay the overtime rate of an hour and a half for every extra hour worked. As the overtime expense grows, the employer has to figure out whether he can make a profit at the increased cost of the labor involved. In lots of instances, he is stymied and cannot expand or create new jobs.

The 35-hour week has already been obtained in several trades and crafts by the pressure of labor unions. This leads, of course, to desperate efforts by the employer to find new machinery and to cut down other expenses, which again means more unemployment. It certainly doesn't add to national growth.

Employers in many cases would rather pay higher rates per hour than pay penalties for overtime. It leads to better planning and a better system of weighing costs in expansion programs. The real stumbling block to growth is the overtime rate and the reduction of the work week.

While the President doesn't favor a federal law which would establish a 35-hour week uniformly in all kind of work, both in the factory and in white-collar jobs, the union leaders know that, as they compel industry after industry to adopt the 35-hour week, the non-organized workers will eventually protest and ask the government to put them on an equal footing with the organized workers.

From an economic standpoint, therefore, the 35-hour week and the penalties for overtime are barriers to new employment. This means that unemployment will grow throughout the 1960s even as it is growing today. President Kennedy in his Chicago speech last week said:

"Our civilian labor force grew by nearly 12 million during the last 15 years. But the number of jobs grew by only 10 million. In the last five years we saw an annual increase of only 175,000 private jobs, outside of agriculture, compared to 700,000 in each of the previous ten years. Our total gross national product output grew at a rate of only 3 per cent, while unemployment remained continuously above 5 per cent. . . .

"Unless we step up our rate of growth, unless we create a supply of jobs which is more equal to the demand, our rate of unemployment will steadily and swiftly climb to the recession level of 7 per cent, even without a recession."

It isn't tax reduction, therefore, that can save the day, but a better margin of profit on the present volume of sales so as to make it worthwhile to invest money to bring about the very expansion which increases jobs. It is a less expensive way to promote employment than deficit spending by the government. Yet the President has not uttered a single word of recommendation to Congress to amend the labor-management laws to curb the monopoly power of labor unions and to put collective bargaining on a sound economic basis. This can be done through national federations of labor leaders who would have power over local unions and would have the authority to forbid strikes which go to extremes. To respect economic facts is to bring confidence to business planning, and this would result in job creation and full employment.

CONGRESSIONAL TRIPS — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell's much-publicized European junket focused attention of the public and Congress on the profligate spending of U. S. government assets on what obviously has been, in some cases, poorly disguised vacations.

Following the publicity attendant on Powell's jaunt, the House of Representatives moved to limit such trips. No such action has yet been taken by the Senate, but that too may be in the offing if public sentiment is aroused — particularly in these days when leaders of both political parties pay so much lip service to economy in government.

Availability of large sums for spending abroad by congressmen, senators and other government officials is a bi-product of the U. S. foreign aid program. Under the program, the receiving governments actually pay for the aid in their own currencies with the restriction that these amounts can be spent only for U. S. government uses in the countries themselves. The U. S. is the holder of literally billions of dollars of foreign currencies throughout much of the free world. Whenever a congressman visits one of these countries on official business, he is entitled to draw on the currency of the country to finance his official activities.

Thus, Representative Powell and his two female aides spent $4,971 in these so-called "counterpart funds" in the various European countries they visited.

But Powell, it turns out, was neither the only or the largest spender, although he and members of his Education and Labor Committee drew a total of $18,963 in 1962.

The work of the Joint Economic Committee caused its members and staff to draw a total of $22,325 last year, most of it spent by committee consultants on a seven-nation investigatory trip that has yet to produce a report. Among the consultants were Philip Patman, a cousin of former committee chairman Rep. Wright Patman of Texas, and Thomas H. Boggs, son of the House Majority Whip Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana.

Sen. Kennth Keating of New York and two of his office assistants spent $3,182 in counterpart funds for a trip that took them to Nigeria, The Congo, Belgium, Germany, the United Kingdom, Poland and Austria. The Congo part of the trip was taken with the co-operation of the State Department; the European part was in behalf of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee to study Communist influence in East-West trade relations.

Use Of Oxygen Valuable Aid To Heart Patient

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A neighbor of mine who had had heart disease for years reached the point where the old ticker could take no more. The contractions became rapid, irregular, and more feeble, and his skin turned blue. The struggle for air was on.

When I arrived, he was sitting on the edge of the bed panting as though he had just run a mile. He had that typical anxious expression of a person who is fighting for his life, and knows it. The ambulance arrived shortly thereafter and he was given emergency oxygen on the way to the hospital.

Oxygen was continued until he reached his room, where he was put into a modern oxygen tent. He fell asleep and we crossed our fingers, hoping for the best. I entered the room the next morning and was greeted by an entirely different man. His breathing was normal and color good. He was hungry and wanted breakfast.

This is not an unusual experience as miracles such as these happen every day. The tent spared the heart by providing much needed oxygen. In addition, it was refrigerated which, in itself, is helpful to a heart patient, especially in the summer months when the temperature and humidity are high. There is considerable evidence that air conditioning is a valuable adjunct in the treatment of heart failure.

Oxygen is used also in the early treatment of coronary thrombosis, severe bronchial asthma, pneumonia, and other lung disorders. Various devices are available to administer it in combination with other gases and aerosol products. Much skill and special training are required to use these apparatuses. And this goes for the pulmotor machine that has gained widespread acceptance. This device assists ventilation by inflating the lung intermittently by positive pressure.

The victim of emphysema can exercise without becoming short of breath, thanks to oxygen. Many who have difficulty walking can go a greater distance by inhaling oxygen from a portable 2-pound cylinder.

KIDNEY DISEASE PREVENTION

L. H. writes: Has modern medicine anything to offer in the control of Bright's disease?

REPLY

No, except to control the streptococcal infections that trigger the acute phase of kidney disease. Much more can be done for renal disorders that are associated with high blood pressure, stones, and obstruction of the bladder such as that caused by prostate enlargement.

GALLSTONE COLLECTION

E. G. writes: A woman I know had her gall bladder removed and claims it contained 700 stones. Is this a tall tale, do you think?

REPLY

No. She might have exaggerated by a few hundred or she may have counted every little bit of gravel as a gallstone.

TOMORROW: Driving and the heart.

Try And Stop Me

"Nobody can predict," notes Ernest Havermann, "where the next top gag-writer for television will come from." A writer who can furnish a steady supply of laugh lines for comedians like Bob Hope and Jack Benny is worth his weight in gold—and even harder to find.

The best of the gag-writers pop up in the most unexpected places. Abe Burrows, co-author of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," was slaving as an accountant in Wall Street when somebody told him that all the hilarious remarks he was handing out for free could be sold at a high price to material-hungry TV personalities. Burrows' co-author on "How to Succeed," Jack Weinstock, still practices medicine. In fact, he once stopped writing long enough to take out his collaborator's appendix.

Goodman Ace, who has written such wonderful comedy lines for Perry Como and the like, began his career as drama critic for a Kansas City newspaper. And there's another top TV comedy writer who less than four years ago was pressing pants in an upstate tailor shop! His present earnings: something like $100,000 a year!

Khrushchev, Losing Face Over Red Rift, Toughens Stance Toward U.S.

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — One fact Americans don't always realize about the Communist world is that it is not a monolithic system. There are as many changing political tides running inside it as inside the Democratic Party where JFK must deal with both Dixiecrats and big city liberal Democrats to pass his legislation.

Right now Nikita Khrushchev has to reckon with two groups—the Red Army and the Chinese Reds — in selling his more moderate ideas to the Communist world, and as of the moment it looks as if the Chinese were scoring more victories than he. Here is the score-card as tabulated by U. S. intelligence observers:

IN ASIA — The Chinese have induced the Communist parties of Japan and Indonesia to quit walking the tightrope between Moscow and Peiping and line up with the Communist leaders in North Viet Nam. Laos and Malaya have also lined up with the Chinese. In this area, the Russians have played ball quietly with U. S. officials, obviously because they don't want the Chinese to get control of south Asian rubber, tin and rice.

IN EUROPE—Communist leaders in Britain and Norway have recently defied the Kremlin's wishes and accepted invitations to visit Peking.

IN LATIN AMERICA — U. S. Intelligence has picked up secret documents showing that the hard line followed by Castro agents in bombing American oil companies and U. S. offices in Venezuela has been dictated by the Chinese and opposed by Moscow. The State Department has long known that during the arguments between Fidel Castro and Deputy Prime Minister Mikoyan over the removal of missiles and on-site inspection, Castro threatened to go over to the Chinese.

Now there is increasing evidence that the Chinese have been much more aggressive in carrying out sabotage and bitter anti-American propaganda throughout the Caribbean and Northern Latin America.

Tougher Stance

One of the major differences between Moscow and Peking is the inevitability of war against capitalism. And in order to appease the Chinese, it looks as if Khrushchev has stepped up the outward appearances of belligerency. At least this is the explanation given by U. S. experts for several unusual steps taken recently by the Kremlin. They are:

1. — The Soviet overflight of Alaska. This is the first time in history that Soviet planes have flown over U. S. soil. The United States has overflown Soviet-Siberian territory several times, but the Russians have been careful to stay far away from Alaskan and Aleutian territory.

Since U.S. radar posts can see these planes coming the minute they leave Siberian bases, the Russians could not have expected to get away with secret flights, therefore must have ordered them with a view to getting a little publicity.

2. — The inspection of the carrier Forrestal in mid-Atlantic — a spectacular 7,000-mile flight obviously taken with a view to demonstrating the capabilities of Soviet bombers and also get world publicity.

3. — The Soviet announcement that U. S. cruisers had fired on a Russian trawler, when actually no U. S. cruisers were anywhere within range. The announcement made it appear that Russia and the United States were getting more belligerent.

4. — When Cuban refugees announced the had shot up a Russian camp in Cuba. The Russians confirmed the story — though the United States has conclusive evidence that the raid never took place. It was a hoax. The Russians didn't bother to puncture the hoax, presumably because this gave a picture of strained relations.

While this public image of belligerency is being deliberately promoted, actually Russian and American diplomats are operating about as usual.

The Moscow line has stiffened somewhat, probably as a result of Red Army influence. But no American or Russian diplomat things the USA or USSR are anywhere near as close to a war as the Chinese Reds would like to hope.

NOTE — Some of Kennedy's advisers, led by ex-Governor Averill Harriman of New York who once served as envoy in Moscow; ex-Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois; and ex-Governor Chester Bowles of Connecticut have been urging him to give Khrushchev some political ammunition to help him in the struggle with the Red Chinese and the Red Army, such as a Berlin settlement.

Champion's Burden

Sonny Liston, the giant Negro who won the world's heavyweight championship from Floyd Patterson has found that the role of champ in the ring is easier than that out of camp outside the ring.

In the first place he hasn't been paid for that Chicago fight that won him the championship last fall. The promoters, Championship Sports, (Roy Cohn and the Bolan brothers) had part of their funds seized by Internal Revenue; they also had other financial difficulties.

So they paid Liston installments of $25,000, up to $85,000, and still owed him $125,000 before the Miami fight was called off. Prior to the Miami fight it had been agreed that Cohn and the Bolans would deposit the first $125,000 from that fight in a Delaware County, Pennsylvania, bank as Liston's share.

Meanwhile Liston's own expenses have been considerable. It takes a lot of money to operate a training camp and support the retinue of trainers, handlers, publicity men and others who surround a champ, and one thing Liston is not doing is making the mistake Joe Louis made of failing to pay his taxes to Uncle Sam.

Another thing he's doing is making appearances at hospitals, boys schools and other groups interested in juvenile delinquency. Liston hasn't forgotton those years he spent in a Missouri state penitentiary and his various brushes with the police.

He would like to forget them, but he can't. The next best thing he can do is to help other youngsters keep out of similar trouble.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

No industry has grown like commercial aviation. Sixty years ago, the Wright Brothers left the ground in a pair of wings and a power plant and flew. Today, there are more than 10,000 commercial takeoffs and landings every 24 hours. The problem of service and speed and safety becomes more and more complex.

So does economy. Britain and France are combining their resources to build an airliner which will fly at twice the speed of sound while the Americans are struggling to pay for their subsonic jets. They cost more than $5,000,000 apiece and it requires a lot of passengers to write off the debt and show a profit.

They fly at 530 knots (600 m.p.h.) at 35,000 feet and burn about seven tons of kerosene per hour. It is going to take another four or five years for the airlines to pay for them — not counting the cost of replacement engines at $350,000 apiece. If the U. S. Government does not permit some of the lines to merge, we'll have bankruptcies.

They can't all live off the same routes. National, Eastern and Northeast compete for the same winter-time dollar between New York and Miami. United, American and TWA for the transcontinental traffic. Pan-American and TWA battle each other for trans-Atlantic money and, together, they compete with British B.O.A.C.; German Lufthansa; Dutch K.L.M.; French Air France; Italian Alitalia; and smaller carriers such as Irish International Airlines; Air India; Pakistan Airways; and El Al of Israel.

The situation is bad, and getting worse. Ironically, more people are flying, but while the traffic rate increases about 10 percent per year, the average jet can make two round trips where its predecessor (DC-7 and Super Constellation G) made one, and the jet can carry more pasengers on each trip. So, even with more people flying, many flights are operated at a loss. The load factor is often only 32 percent.

Safety and traffic control have gone so far, under Najeeb Halaby of the Federal Aviation Administration, that with 3,400,000 takeoffs and landings per year, the U.S. averages less than six big accidents. It is now a provable fact that you are safer in an airliner than in your automobile.

The British and French, with their mach 2 airliner, will cross the Atlantic Ocean in about three hours. The Americans, especially the research group at Boeing, have been planning a plane which will fly at three times the speed of sound (roughly 2,100 m.p.h.). It will carry 200 passengers and, although it never got off the drawing boards, it is already economically unfeasible. It's ready for the garbage can.

Why? Well, look at it this way. A mach 3 plane is so different from what is now flying that it will take five years and $500,000,000 to get the first one in the air. It will need a retractable delta wing and power plants beyond anything now in use. It will have to be able to lift off at 200 knots or less, and land at the same speed.

None of the airlines can afford the time or the money, and Congress would rather spend the same amount for the RS 70, a bomber the Defense Department doesn't want, than to help put U. S. aviation ahead of the rest of the world. If the Marine Corps, the only "instant" troops we have, had only 10 mach 3's, General Shoup could land a full division of soldiers anywhere in the world in 24 hours.

Another minus factor in the building of the mach 3 is its super-efficiency. As a commercial vehicle — using N. Y. to Paris as an example — it can fly it in two hours, lay over for an hour, and fly back in two and a half hours. One plane could make four round trips per day, carrying 200 passengers each way. That's 1,600 passengers.

The peak load on the trans-Atlantic run was July 1962, when 396,958 persons flew across the Atlantic, or to Bermuda or the Caribbean. The traffic hit its low in February, when the number of passengers sagged to 184,876. Using the high figures, it comes to about 12,800 passengers leaving or entering New York each day.

Eight mach 3 jets could handle all this traffic without strain. In effect, this would drive all international airlines out of business except the one which had the eight planes. Whatever line this may be, it is not going to be one of ours.

Even the Franco-British mach 2, which is now in the planning stage, can fly N. Y. to Paris in three hours and, with an hour of layover, can make three round trips a day. They will need only 11 such swift giants to drive us —and everybody else — out of the air.

No private company is big enough to solve the problem. Isn't it time our government did something first, instead of always waiting to react to somebody else's fait accompli? . . .

The Clay Report On Foreign Aid

Few will quarrel with the Clay committee's conclusion that the U. S. foreign aid program is "attempting to do too much for too many" and could accomplish more with less. That is what practical men have been saying for years.

Over the 17 years it has poured $100 billion into overseas assistance the program has sprawled into a catch-all of diverse and uncertain objectives. Projects with initial merit have been continued beyond need. Loose administration has further contributed to the waste.

Emphasis has shifted from Europe, where aid received a rapid and productive response, to nations whose foundations are flimsy and capabilities are uncertain. The Clay committee set enough guideposts to point the way to substantial improvement. To cite a few:

Don't use funds to impress foreign sovereigns, forestall Soviet aid or gamble on keeping a regime in power.

Stop bailing out debts of nations that borrow at higher rates elsewhere.

Cut back military aid to those able to pay their way.

Focus on countries with a will to be free and help themselves.

That much is wrong with the program is evident in the fact that a committee finds it necessary to make these recommendations.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

The Right Climate

There are more people at work in the American economy than ever before—66.4 million in fact. Nevertheless, unemployment, now estimated at 6.1 per cent of the working force, is on the increase. With the population trend-line up, both President Kennedy and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz are absolutely right when they say that the economy must expand at a much faster pace if it is to absorb the droves of young people who will be graduating from school and college in the late Nineteen Sixties and the Seventies.

The problem, however, is not entirely what Secretary Wirtz seems to think it is. The Secretary speaks of the need to give young people skills—and by this he means skills that can be translated into jobs on the factory floor. The response of the New Frontier to the unemployment situation has been to call for more government-fostered industrial training programs. But this, in an age of growing automation, is somewhat beside the point. Insofar as teaching young people to set the "programs" for automated equipment and to see to it that complicated production lines do not break down, this is something that industry can do very well for itself. Indeed, industry has been doing it for a long time now, as anyone who is acquainted with the training programs of such companies as General Electric or the Ford Motor Company must know.

The dilemma of the economy in 1963 is that it must find ways of increasing employment without adding significantly to factory payrolls. For ten years now the trend of factory employment, when put on a graph, has made a relatively neat horizontal line. The employment in the service industries, however, has been leaping upward. The only trouble is that the growing "scissors" gap between the two lines on the graph has not been sufficiently wide to take care of all our young job seekers.

With practically every industry on the prowl for better methods of automation, it is a dead cinch that there will be little change in the factory employment trend line. The product of industry will grow, but the work force will remain relatively stationary. So it is up to the service trades to absorb young people. But this involves inventing new services that we do not already have—and by its very nature the problem is something that the government cannot solve directly.

The issue is one of creativity—and creativity, in turn, is something that comes out of a stimulating environment. Well, just how much stimulation do you get out of sending young men out in Civilian Conservation Corps groups to clean up the woods? When they come back from the woods, they have learned nothing that they haven't already learned as Boy Scouts.

How much stimulation comes from training a young man at running a machine when he knows that a system of tape controls will take away his job the day after he gets it? The truth is that a climate of politically administered welfarism and politically dominated make-work is not going to help expand the service trades at all. What we need is a society in which people can keep their own money to spend on all sorts of fanciful and inventive things. More luxuries, more travel. We also need a society in which purchasing power ceases to be destroyed by inflation. As President Kennedy insists, we need lower taxes. But as the President does not seem to know, we also need a cut in government spending looking toward a balance in the budget.

With money in their pockets, and with a feeling that they will continue to be paid in the future in a stable coin, people will buy the darndest services. An example? I give you the Sidney Printing and Publishing Company of Sidney, Ohio, which publishes a weekly hobby journal, "Coin World," for numismatists. "Coin World" runs to more than a hundred pages some weeks, and has a masthead of employees almost as long as your arm. A drop in the bucket of "service"? Maybe so, but it is going to take thousands of such drops if the U.S. is to solve its unemployment situation. Factory employment just isn't going to do the job. Imaginative people will do it if they have a feeling that it is worth their while.

Economic Facts And The 35-Hour Work Week

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—What's a "35-hour week"? Union labor is all for it, and at first glance it seems a wonderful thing not to have to work 40 hours but only 35. But what are the facts?

In the first place, union labor wants the same pay for 35 hours as for 40. In the second place, the practical effect is that almost always the same employes—not the unemployed—get the extra money whenever work is extended beyond 35 hours.

The unions, moreover, insist that double payment be made for each hour above 35, instead of the usual hour-and-a-half pay for one hour of overtime work. All this would mean an increase of hundreds of millions of dollars in industry s labor costs. The change from 40 to 35 hours with no reduction in weekly pay would increase labor costs 14 per cent. If overtime also is involved, still further increases would result.

These simple statements tell the real story about what's wrong with the trend of the national economy today and why President Kennedy's prediction of a "decade of recession" is likely to come true, even if a tax cut is granted by Congress.

Mr. Kennedy has made occasional references to the 35-hour week and has taken a position opposite to the AFL-CIO, which is demanding it. The AFL-CIO unions, however, have a powerful weapon available. They can get the 35-hours week—and in some trades now are obtaining it—by the usual process of extortion through strikes or threats of strikes, euphemistically called "collective bargaining."

The public generally doesn't know what a 35-hour week would mean. Not only would this work schedule fail to absorb the unemployed of today, but it would not make new jobs for the millions of young workers coming into the labor market each year.

The overtime problem is the real reason. A company that operates on one shift, for instance, of eight hours a day for five days a week cannot hire new workers to take care of an hour or two of work each day after the regular shift finishes. It is natural to use the existing personnel and to pay the overtime rate of an hour and a half for every extra hour worked. As the overtime expense grows, the employer has to figure out whether he can make a profit at the increased cost of the labor involved. In lots of instances, he is stymied and cannot expand or create new jobs.

The 35-hour week has already been obtained in several trades and crafts by the pressure of labor unions. This leads, of course, to desperate efforts by the employer to find new machinery and to cut down other expenses, which again means more unemployment. It certainly doesn't add to national growth.

Employers in many cases would rather pay higher rates per hour than pay penalties for overtime. It leads to better planning and a better system of weighing costs in expansion programs. The real stumbling block to growth is the overtime rate and the reduction of the work week.

While the President doesn't favor a federal law which would establish a 35-hour week uniformly in all kind of work, both in the factory and in white-collar jobs, the union leaders know that, as they compel industry after industry to adopt the 35-hour week, the non-organized workers will eventually protest and ask the government to put them on an equal footing with the organized workers.

From an economic standpoint, therefore, the 35-hour week and the penalties for overtime are barriers to new employment. This means that unemployment will grow throughout the 1960s even as it is growing today. President Kennedy in his Chicago speech last week said:

"Our civilian labor force grew by nearly 12 million during the last 15 years. But the number of jobs grew by only 10 million. In the last five years we saw an annual increase of only 175,000 private jobs, outside of agriculture, compared to 700,000 in each of the previous ten years. "Unless we step up our rate of growth, unless we create a supply of jobs which is more equal to the demand, our rate of unemployment will steadily and swiftly climb to the recession level of 7 per cent, even without a recession."

It isn't tax reduction, therefore, that can save the day, but a better margin of profit on the present volume of sales so as to make it worthwhile to invest money to bring about the very expansion which increases jobs. It is a less expensive way to promote employment than deficit spending by the government. Yet the President has not uttered a single word of recommendation to Congress to amend the labor-management laws to curb the monopoly power of labor unions and to put collective bargaining on a sound economic basis. This can be done through national federations of labor leaders who would have power over local unions and would have the authority to forbid strikes which go to extremes. To respect economic facts is to bring confidence to business planning, and this would result in job creation and full employment.

Now there is increasing evidence that the Chinese have been much more aggressive in carrying out sabotage and bitter anti-American propaganda throughout the Caribbean and Northern Latin America.

Tougher Stance

One of the major differences between Moscow and Peking is the inevitability of war against capitalism. And in order to appease the Chinese, it looks as if Khrushchev has stepped up the outward appearances of belligerency. At least this is the explanation given by U. S. experts for several unusual steps taken recently by the Kremlin. They are:

1. — The Soviet overflight of Alaska. This is the first time in history that Soviet planes have flown over U. S. soil. The United States has overflown Soviet-Siberian territory several times, but the Russians have been careful to stay far away from Alaskan and Aleutian territory.

Since U.S. radar posts can see these planes coming the minute they leave Siberian bases, the Russians could not have expected to get away with secret flights, therefore must have ordered them with a view to getting a little publicity.

2. — The inspection of the carrier Forrestal in mid-Atlantic — a spectacular 7,000-mile flight obviously taken with a view to demonstrating the capabilities of Soviet bombers and also get world publicity.

3. — The Soviet announcement that U. S. cruisers had fired on a Russian trawler, when actually no U. S. cruisers were anywhere within range. The announcement made it appear that Russia and the United States were getting more belligerent.

4. — When Cuban refugees announced the had shot up a Russian camp in Cuba. The Russians confirmed the story — though the United States has conclusive evidence that the raid never took place. It was a hoax. The Russians didn't bother to puncture the hoax, presumably because this gave a picture of strained relations.

While this public image of belligerency is being deliberately promoted, actually Russian and American diplomats are operating about as usual.

The Moscow line has stiffened somewhat, probably as a result of Red Army influence. But no American or Russian diplomat things the USA or USSR are anywhere near as close to a war as the Chinese Reds would like to hope.

NOTE — Some of Kennedy's advisers, led by ex-Governor Averill Harriman of New York who once served as envoy in Moscow; ex-Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois; and ex-Governor Chester Bowles of Connecticut have been urging him to give Khrushchev some political ammunition to help him in the struggle with the Red Chinese and the Red Army, such as a Berlin settlement.

Champion's Burden

Sonny Liston, the giant Negro who won the world's heavyweight championship from Floyd Patterson has found that the role of champ in the ring is easier than that out of camp outside the ring.

In the first place he hasn't been paid for that Chicago fight that won him the championship last fall. The promoters, Championship Sports, (Roy Cohn and the Bolan brothers) had part of their funds seized by Internal Revenue; they also had other financial difficulties.

So they paid Liston installments of $25,000, up to $85,000, and still owed him $125,000 before the Miami fight was called off. Prior to the Miami fight it had been agreed that Cohn and the Bolans would deposit the first $125,000 from that fight in a Delaware County, Pennsylvania, bank as Liston's share.

Meanwhile Liston's own expenses have been considerable. It takes a lot of money to operate a training camp and support the retinue of trainers, handlers, publicity men and others who surround a champ, and one thing Liston is not doing is making the mistake Joe Louis made of failing to pay his taxes to Uncle Sam.

Another thing he's doing is making appearances at hospitals, boys schools and other groups interested in juvenile delinquency. Liston hasn't forgotton those years he spent in a Missouri state penitentiary and his various brushes with the police.

He would like to forget them, but he can't. The next best thing he can do is to help other youngsters keep out of similar trouble.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

No industry has grown like commercial aviation. Sixty years ago, the Wright Brothers left the ground in a pair of wings and a power plant and flew. Today, there are more than 10,000 commercial takeoffs and landings every 24 hours. The problem of service and speed and safety becomes more and more complex.

So does economy. Britain and France are combining their resources to build an airliner which will fly at twice the speed of sound while the Americans are struggling to pay for their subsonic jets. They cost more than $5,000,000 apiece and it requires a lot of passengers to write off the debt and show a profit.

They fly at 530 knots (600 m.p.h.) at 35,000 feet and burn about seven tons of kerosene per hour. It is going to take another four or five years for the airlines to pay for them — not counting the cost of replacement engines at $350,000 apiece. If the U. S. Government does not permit some of the lines to merge, we'll have bankruptcies.

They can't all live off the same routes. National, Eastern and Northeast compete for the same winter-time dollar between New York and Miami. United, American and TWA for the transcontinental traffic. Pan-American and TWA battle each other for trans-Atlantic money and, together, they compete with British B.O.A.C.; German Lufthansa; Dutch K.L.M.; French Air France; Italian Alitalia; and smaller carriers such as Irish International Airlines; Air India; Pakistan Airways; and El Al of Israel.

The situation is bad, and getting worse. Ironically, more people are flying, but while the traffic rate increases about 10 percent per year, the average jet can make two round trips where its predecessor (DC-7 and Super Constellation G) made one, and the jet can carry more pasengers on each trip. So, even with more people flying, many flights are operated at a loss. The load factor is often only 32 percent.

Safety and traffic control have gone so far, under Najeeb Halaby of the Federal Aviation Administration, that with 3,400,000 take-offs and landings per year, the U.S. averages less than six big accidents. It is now a provable fact that you are safer in an airliner than in your automobile.

The British and French, with their mach 2 airliner, will cross the Atlantic Ocean in about three hours. The Americans, especially the research group at Boeing, have been planning a plane which will fly at three times the speed of sound (roughly 2,100 m.p.h.). It will carry 200 passengers and, although it never got off the drawing boards, it is already economically unfeasible. It's ready for the garbage can.

Why? Well, look at it this way. A mach 3 plane is so different from what is now flying that it will take five years and $500,000,000 to get the first one in the air. It will need a retractable delta wing and power plants beyond anything now in use. It will have to be able to lift off at 200 knots or less, and land at the same speed.

None of the airlines can afford the time or the money, and Congress would rather spend the same amount for the RS 70, a bomber the Defense Department doesn't want, than to help put U. S. aviation ahead of the rest of the world. If the Marine Corps, the only "instant" troops we have, had only 10 mach 3's, General Shoup could land a full division of soldiers anywhere in the world in 24 hours.

Another minus factor in the building of the mach 3 is its super-efficiency. As a commercial vehicle — using N. Y. to Paris as an example — it can fly it in two hours, lay over for an hour, and fly back in two and a half hours. One plane could make four round trips per day, carrying 200 passengers each way. That's 1,600 passengers.

The peak load on the trans-Atlantic run was July 1962, when 396,958 persons flew across the Atlantic, or to Bermuda or the Caribbean. The traffic hit its low in February, when the number of passengers sagged to 184,876. Using the high figures, it comes to about 12,800 passengers leaving or entering New York each day.

Eight mach 3 jets could handle all this traffic without strain. In effect, this would drive all international airlines out of business except the one which had the eight planes. Whatever line this may be, it is not going to be one of ours.

Even the Franco-British mach 2, which is now in the planning stage, can fly N. Y. to Paris in three hours and, with an hour of layover, can make three round trips a day. They will need only 11 such swift giants to drive us —and everybody else — out of the air.

No private company is big enough to solve the problem. Isn't it time our government did something first, instead of always waiting to react to somebody else's fait accompli? . . .

Use Of Oxygen Valuable Aid To Heart Patient

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A neighbor of mine who had had heart disease for years reached the point where the old ticker could take no more. The contractions became rapid, irregular, and more feeble, and his skin turned blue. The struggle for air was on.

When I arrived, he was sitting on the edge of the bed panting as though he had just run a mile. He had that typical anxious expression of a person who is fighting for his life, and knows it. The ambulance arrived shortly thereafter and he was given emergency oxygen on the way to the hospital.

Oxygen was continued until he reached his room, where he was put into a modern oxygen tent. He fell asleep and we crossed our fingers, hoping for the best. I entered the room the next morning and was greeted by an entirely different man. His breathing was normal and color good. He was hungry and wanted breakfast.

This is not an unusual experience as miracles such as these happen every day. The tent spared the heart by providing much needed oxygen. In addition, it was refrigerated which, in itself, is helpful to a heart patient, especially in the summer months when the temperature and humidity are high. There is considerable evidence that air conditioning is a valuable adjunct in the treatment of heart failure.

Oxygen is used also in the early treatment of coronary thrombosis, severe bronchial asthma, pneumonia, and other lung disorders. Various devices are available to administer it in combination with other gases and aerosol products. Much skill and special training are required to use these apparatuses. And this goes for the pulmotor machine that has gained widespread acceptance. This device assists ventilation by inflating the lung intermittently by positive pressure.

The victim of emphysema can exercise without becoming short of breath, thanks to oxygen. Many who have difficulty walking can go a greater distance by inhaling oxygen from a portable 2-pound cylinder.

KIDNEY DISEASE PREVENTION

L. H. writes: Has modern medicine anything to offer in the control of Bright's disease?

REPLY

No, except to control the streptococcal infections that trigger the acute phase of kidney disease. Much more can be done for renal disorders that are associated with high blood pressure, stones, and obstruction of the bladder such as that caused by prostate enlargement.

GALLSTONE COLLECTION

E. G. writes: A woman I know had her gall bladder removed and claims it contained 700 stones. Is this a tall tale, do you think?

REPLY

No. She might have exaggerated by a few hundred or she may have counted every little bit of gravel as a gallstone.

TOMORROW: Driving and the heart.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

"Nobody can predict," notes Ernest Havermann, "where the next top gag-writer for television will come from." A writer who can furnish a steady supply of laugh lines for comedians like Bob Hope and Jack Benny is worth his weight in gold—and even harder to find.

The best of the gag-writers pop up in the most unexpected places. Abe Burrows, co-author of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," was slaving as an accountant in Wall Street when somebody told him that all the hilarious remarks he was handing out for free could be sold at a high price to material-hungry TV personalities. Burrows' co-author on "How to Succeed," Jack Weinstock, still practices medicine. In fact, he once stopped writing long enough to take out his collaborator's appendix.

Goodman Ace, who has written such wonderful comedy lines for Perry Como and the like, began his career as drama critic for a Kansas City newspaper. And there's another top TV comedy writer who less than four years ago was pressing pants in an upstate tailor shop! His present earnings: something like $100,000 a year!

Administrator Of Hospital Is Discharged

ROMNEY — Henry L. Harness was discharged Tuesday night from his post as administrator of Hampshire Memorial Hospital by the institution's board of directors.

George B. Shanholtz, chairman of the board, refused to divulge any of the proceedings of the meeting or any reasons for the firing of Harness. His only statement was, "For the good of the hospital, Henry L. Harness was fired as administrator, effective immediately."

The report is that a meeting was called Tuesday afternoon by three members, Campbell Pancake, L. A. Gainer and Mrs. Pluma Long, for the purpose of discussing the dismissal of Mrs. Eloise Pugh from her position as director of nurses. The board has refused to disclose what action it took on this or any other matter at Tuesday night's meeting, at which all members were present as well as members of the County Court and Loudoun L. Thompson, prosecuting attorney.

Mrs. Pugh was dismissed at her own insistence Monday afternoon after she had refused to accept a letter from Harness, advising her that her resignation, which had been tendered in writing in February had been accepted, effective that day. It was explained to her that Harness had acted in accordance with her request and had made arrangements for a temporary replacement to report for duty Tuesday morning, and that he was therefore at the point of no return. At her insistence, she was given a letter of dismissal rather than the letter accepting her resignation.

As a result of Mrs. Pugh's dismissal, several other registered nurses refused to report for duty Tuesday, or informed the acting director of nurses that they no longer planned to work at the hospital. Some of the nurses refused to join them and by doubling up on shifts and with the help of some other registered nurses in the community the 35 patients in the hospital had the protection of registered nurses on the floors.

A petition reportedly is being circulated requesting the County Court to secure the resignation, or dismissal, of the hospital's board of directors. The petition further asks that a new board be appointed, its membership consisting of the president of the County Court, mayor of Romney and not more than three other responsible citizens.

Kneece Leads Azalea Open

Posts Six Under Par 66 For First Round

WILMINGTON, N.C. (UPI)—Harold Kneece, a little man with a mighty swing, blazed his way to a six-under-par 66 Thursday and a one-stroke lead in the opening round of the $22,500 Azalea Open golf tournament.

The Aiken, S.C., pro had trouble on only one hole, the fifth. He more than made up for it with one putt birdies on seven holes. He went out in 34 and came back in 32 over the par 36-36—72 Cape Fear Country Club course.

Jack Fleck, at 42 one of the oldest pros in the 15th annual, 72-hole Azalea, and one of the favorites, Gene Littler, shot 67's. Billy Farrell, 27, of Manalatan, N.J., finished two strokes off the pace at 68.

Trailing the four leaders at 69 were Jerry Barber, a two-time Azalea winner, and Rod Funseth. At 70 were Bill Blanton, Bob Spence, Jim Wright, Billy Maxwell, Dan Sikes, Jack Rule, Herb Marcussen, Randy Glover, Bob Harrison, George Knudson, Lionel Hebert, Frank Wharton and Larry Beck.

Defending champion Dave Marr was off the pace with a 73.

Tee Pee Wins, 2-1

The Tee Pee won two out of three games from Ruth's Tavern Wednesday night in an Allegany County Women's Shuffleboard League match. Ann Scott paced the winners with 22 points while Gilda Dyche's 25 was high for Ruth's.

Tomorrow's activity get under way at 9:30 a.m., when Bishop Walsh Circle of Cumberland meets Notre Dame Circle, of Baltimore. A number of trophies and awards will be presented following Sunday's championship contest. The Wilbur Firlie memorial award, which must be won three times for permanent possession, will be given to the first place team. Father Bradley Circle was the first winner in 1961, and last season Marian Circle of Baltimore won the championship.

The Squires Mothers Club is giving an award to the most determined player, and trophies for the best offensive and defensive players, respectively, are bing donated by Hosken's Jewelry Store and Maryland chief squire James P. Kenney Jr.

Cordts To Speak

Tickets for the tournament are available at the Frostburg K. of C. home, Taccino's Shoe Repair Shop, Hosken's Jewelry Store and Small's news stand in Frostburg.

Pirates Blank Baltimore, 6-0

Haddix, Sisk Allow Only Four Safeties

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates shut out the Baltimore Orioles 6-0 Thursday behind the four-hit pitching of Harvey Haddix and Tommie Sisk.

Haddix, a 37-year-old southpaw, allowed a single hit in the six-inning stint.

Meanwhile, the Pirates slammed Oriole pitcher Chuck Estrada for eight hits and five runs before John Miller replaced him in the sixth.

Roberto Clemente, Bob Skinner, Wilver Stargell and Bob Bailey each collected two hits for the Pirates.

Miller, 21-year-old Baltimore rookie, struck out the side in two straight innings, but yielded the Pirates' final run on a walk, a stolen base and a single.

The Pirates now stand 8-8-1 in pre-season play.

The defeat was the Orioles' sixth in their last eight starts. After winning their first 10 games, the Birds have a 12-6 won-lost record.

Two West Virginia Quints Score Gold Medal Victories

Sportsman's Club, Snyder's Triumph In Senior Division

Two teams from the Martinsburg-Shepherdstown area invaded the Central YMCA last night for the Gold Medal Tournament, and both walked off with victories in the senior unlimited division.

A classy band of cagers billed as the Sportsman's Club whipped the Papermakers 67-43, and Snyder's Esso turned back Ritter's Tavern, 57-46.

In the closest struggle on last night's four-game card, Boal's Jolly Green Giants tripped Kean's Misfits, 53-46, in overtime. Lovers Leap Esso scored a 61-42 win over the Sharks in a 135-pound class match.

Yesterday's activity closed out the first week of Gold Medal tourney play. Competition will resume on Monday, with quarter-final and semi-final round contests slated.

Bucky McDonald, who was named the tournament's outstanding player two years ago, fired in 21 points last night for the slick Sportsman's Club cagers. Gary Phalen scored 13 for the West Virginians, who led all the way. Bill Wright collected 21 points for the Papermakers.

Although held even in field goals, the Snyder's Esso team plunked in 17 of 22 free throw tries to Ritter's 6-10 mark for the margin of victory. Ronnie Phillips was high for Snyder's with 19 points, while Fred Barbe led Ritter's with 12.

In spite of a considerable height advantage, Boal's Giants had a struggle on their hands throughout against the Misfits. The regulation contest ended in a 44-44 deadlock, and the Giants outscored their opponents 9-2 in the extra session.

Bob Weaver paced Boal's with 16 points, six-foot-five Mike Shay tallied 15, and 6-8 Glenn Ray came through with 14. The Misfits' Gary Seibert took game honors with 21.

Led by former Allegany Camper ace Wayne Shook, Lovers Leap pulled away after a close first half to win with ease. Shook finished as Lovers Leap's top scorer with 14 points. Marcellus Lewis, Bobby Powell and Rocky Klosterman canned ten apiece for the Sharks.

Kneece Leads Azalea Open

Posts Six Under Par 66 For First Round

WILMINGTON, N.C. (UPI)—Harold Kneece, a little man with a mighty swing, blazed his way to a six-under-par 66 Thursday and a one-stroke lead in the opening round of the $22,500 Azalea Open golf tournament.

The Aiken, S.C., pro had trouble on only one hole, the fifth. He more than made up for it with one putt birdies on seven holes. He went out in 34 and came back in 32 over the par 36-36—72 Cape Fear Country Club course.

Jack Fleck, at 42 one of the oldest pros in the 15th annual, 72-hole Azalea, and one of the favorites, Gene Littler, shot 67's. Billy Farrell, 27, of Manalatan, N.J., finished two strokes off the pace at 68.

Trailing the four leaders at 69 were Jerry Barber, a two-time Azalea winner, and Rod Funseth. At 70 were Bill Blanton, Bob Spence, Jim Wright, Billy Maxwell, Dan Sikes, Jack Rule, Herb Marcussen, Randy Glover, Bob Harrison, George Knudson, Lionel Hebert, Frank Wharton and Larry Beck.

Defending champion Dave Marr was off the pace with a 73.

Tee Pee Wins, 2-1

The Tee Pee won two out of three games from Ruth's Tavern Wednesday night in an Allegany County Women's Shuffleboard League match. Ann Scott paced the winners with 22 points while Gilda Dyche's 25 was high for Ruth's.

SS. Peter & Paul, St. Patrick's Win, To Tangle Sunday

Frostburg American Legion defeated the Knights of Columbus by a ten-point margin as the two teams wound up their Frostburg City Shufflebroad League playoff series last night at the K. of C. home.

The Legion shufflers took a comfortable 19-point edge into last night's shuffle-off, and the Knights were unable to overcome the advantage. The final totals showed 141 points for the Legion, and 131 for the K. of C.

Folk and Blocher had 16 points each for the Legion, and Eddie Jackson scored 20 for the K. of C.

Nugget Takes Lead

Golden Nugget took a 14-point lead over the Cumberland Moose in their National Division playoff series in the Allegany County Men's Shuffleboard League.

SS. Peter & Paul, St. Patrick's Win, To Tangle Sunday

SS. Peter & Paul defeated St. Mary's, 36-31, and St. Patrick's clobbered St. Ambrose, 60-13, last night, and remained a half game apart in the race for the second half championship of the Catholic Youth Basketball League.

SS. Peter & Paul (10-1) could clinch the second title by winning over St. Patrick's, (9-1) first half champions, when they clash Sunday at 2 p.m., on SS. Peter & Paul court. A victory for St. Patrick's would put the "Fighting Irish" in first place and they would annex both halves if they win their final game with St. Peter's.

In the third game on last night's card at SS. Peter & Paul gym, St. Peter's defeated Mt. Savage, 63-60.

Leafs Take 2-0 Lead

TORONTO (UPI) — The Toronto Maple Leafs took the lead late in the second period and then defended against a driving attack by Montreal to score a 3-2 victory and take a two-game edge over the Canadiens in their Stanley Cup playoff series.

Bonus Boy Murphy Traded To Houston By Chicago Cubs

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Danny Murphy, one of the highest-priced bonus players in history at $125,000, was traded to Houston Thursday by the Chicago Cubs as part of a five-player deal.

The Cubs—who signed Murphy in 1960 in their most expensive venture in the much publicized bonus field — obtained pitcher Dick Lemay and catcher Merritt Ranew, both 24, in addition to a player yet to be named. They also gave up relief pitcher Dave Gerard.

The Colts promptly assigned Murphy and Gerard to their Oklahoma City farm club in the American Association.

John Holland, Cub vice president in charge of player personnel, indicated that Lemay and Ranew will remain with the Cubs for the championship season.

Holland expressed regret that Murphy, who was signed in June, 1960, for a $125,000 bonus, had to be used in the deal, but explained that "we had to strengthen ourselves now. We couldn't wait for Murphy."

Snell's 3:54.4 Mile, Jerome's :09.2 For 100 Dash Ratified

LONDON (AP)—The International Amateur Athletic Federation Thursday ratified a long list of world track and field records, including the one-mile mark of 3:54.4 by Peter Snell of New Zealand and the 100-yard record of :09.2 by Canada's Harry Jerome.

The IAAF list included several marks made prior to last season, but most were for 1962, with 15 going to U.S. athletes and 10 to Russians—half by Soviet women.

Snell's mile record was made at Wanganui, New Zealand, Jan. 27, 1962. His 800-meter record of 1:44.3 on Feb. 3, 1962, at Christchurch, N.Z., also was ratified, along with his 880-yard mark of 1:45.1 in the same race.

Frank Budd's 100-yard mark of 9.3 seconds at Villanova, May 6, 1961, was recognized, but it is superseded by Jerome's clocking at Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 25, 1962 and again Sept. 3 at Toronto.

Bonus Boy Murphy Traded To Houston By Chicago Cubs

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Danny Murphy, one of the highest-priced bonus players in history at $125,000, was traded to Houston Thursday by the Chicago Cubs as part of a five-player deal.

The Cubs—who signed Murphy in 1960 in their most expensive venture in the much publicized bonus field — obtained pitcher Dick Lemay and catcher Merritt Ranew, both 24, in addition to a player yet to be named. They also gave up relief pitcher Dave Gerard.

The Colts promptly assigned Murphy and Gerard to their Oklahoma City farm club in the American Association.

John Holland, Cub vice president in charge of player personnel, indicated that Lemay and Ranew will remain with the Cubs for the championship season.

Holland expressed regret that Murphy, who was signed in June, 1960, for a $125,000 bonus, had to be used in the deal, but explained that "we had to strengthen ourselves now. We couldn't wait for Murphy."

Snell's 3:54.4 Mile, Jerome's :09.2 For 100 Dash Ratified

LONDON (AP)—The International Amateur Athletic Federation Thursday ratified a long list of world track and field records, including the one-mile mark of 3:54.4 by Peter Snell of New Zealand and the 100-yard record of :09.2 by Canada's Harry Jerome.

The IAAF list included several marks made prior to last season, but most were for 1962, with 15 going to U.S. athletes and 10 to Russians—half by Soviet women.

Snell's mile record was made at Wanganui, New Zealand, Jan. 27, 1962. His 800-meter record of 1:44.3 on Feb. 3, 1962, at Christchurch, N.Z., also was ratified, along with his 880-yard mark of 1:45.1 in the same race.

Frank Budd's 100-yard mark of 9.3 seconds at Villanova, May 6, 1961, was recognized, but it is superseded by Jerome's clocking at Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 25, 1962 and again Sept. 3 at Toronto.

In Memoriam

RALSTON — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Nellie Ralston, who passed away 4 years ago, March 29, 1959.

Dear mother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.

$30,000 Issue Is Holding Up State Budget

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The budget remained in a state of suspension Thursday when stiff-backed senators and delegates failed even to resume direct negotiations in their tiff over $30,000.

Tempers flared right in the office of Gov. Tawes Thursday morning between the House Judiciary chairman and the senate majority leader.

As the time rolled on relentlessly, preparations were being made seriously to extend the 90-day session, which is supposed to end next Monday.

If the budget isn't enacted Friday, the governor will be required to issue a proclamation for a special session.

It would be limited to consideration of the $606 million budget for operation of the state starting July 1.

Cannot Move

It would be necessary to hold a second special session immediately after the budget. Several money bills, including some $22 million for buildings and grounds, cannot move until the budget is cleared.

Meanwhile, the legislature could proceed with cleaning up its other work.

The impasse between the two legislative bodies is over an effort by the 29 senators to include $30,000 in the budget so they could hire clerical help between sessions.

They reported no progress after an hour's session, and since each committee vowed to stick by their guns no new conference was set Thursday.

Thursday morning, Gov. Tawes asked Chairman Marvin Mandel, D-Balto 5th, to poll his House Ways and Means Committee again.

The committee reaffirmed its position against the senate money.

The negotiations then became formal. Del. Mandel wrote and sent a note across the corridor to Sen. H. Winship Wheatley, D-Prince Georges, informing him of the house stand.

Mandel's committee suggested that if the senate insisted on its recess aid, it should do so by itself with an order.

The house was against joint action, he wrote.

Sparks Fly

There the matter lay. The governor's office was in touch with Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan to prepare the proclamation and other papers necessary for extending the session if necessary.

The sparks flew in the governor's office during his weekly meeting with legislative leaders.

Chairman Thomas H. Lowe, D-Talbot, House Judiciary chairman, bluntly told senators "If you're going to pick the pockets of the public, you're going to do it without the consent of the house."

Wheatley, who is Democratic floor leader and Senate Finance chairman, blew up.

"Do you want to tangle with me here or downstairs?" Wheatley asked pugnaciously.

"Right here, if the governor doesn't mind, or downstairs," retorted Lowe.

Goodfellowship Club Entry Is Reported

The Goodfellowship Club Inc., 214½ Virginia Avenue, was broken into early yesterday although nothing apparently was taken, police said.

They received a report of the entry about 9 a.m. yesterday. An investigation disclosed that a window was forced in the front part of the building and another window inside the building was forced open. Indications are the intruder went behind the bar and may have tampered with the safe which was not opened. Money, cigarettes and cigars were not bothered, police said.

Lane Opposes Pensions For Ex-Governors

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — Former Democratic governor William Preston Lane Jr. of Hagerstown said Thursday he was opposed to a bill before the Maryland Senate which would provide a pension for former governors.

"Since the bill applies to me personally, I am fundamentally opposed to its passage and I hope it will be defeated," Lane said.

"When I was in office, the state paid me a salary of $4,500 a year for my service. This bill proposes to pay me $4,800 a year for doing nothing. That's ridiculous."

The bill would pay former governors a pension of $1,200 a year for each year served. The bill passed the house and was being considered by the senate.

Tawes Slot

Sen. John L. Sanford Jr., D-Worcester, also going to bat for the administration, said he thought the talk of an economic impact on Southern Maryland was greatly exaggerated.

Predict Prosperity

Sanford said the slot machine industry "took over Worcester County in 1935" with illegal operations and that after being elected state's attorney in 1950, he personally ordered the operators out before the summer resort season began.

The slots folded and the county's economy prospered, Sanford said.

Sen. Mary L. Nock, from the adjoining county of Wicomico, endorsed Sanford's remarks. She said Ocean City had grown by leaps and bounds since slots were removed. She said Sanford was a very unpopular man with elements in the county at the time he cracked down, and she predicted Southern Maryland also would find its economy improved.

Sens. Parran, Hall and Raley all pleaded for more time for their counties to adjust to the loss of slot machines, which make up as much as 20 per cent of the Charles County budget plus supporting numerous business establishments.

Hall insisted it was a local matter, and not up to other senators to decide what was good for the counties concerned.

Sen. Alton said he would support the other Southern Maryland counties in their request for time but felt that it was adequate for Anne Arundel.

He said if it wasn't for interfering with the governor's statewide bill he already would have in a local bill to "drastically curb" the operations of slot machine distributors in Anne Arundel. Alton said he plans now to introduce it at the next 90-day session.

Hughes Votes

"We have to abolish these machines," Alton said. He said distributors should not have been allowed "to get as big as they are and control as much as they do today."

Supporting the amendments were Alton, Raley, Parran, Hall, John A. Derr, R-Frederick, William L. Hodges, D - Balto 6th, George R. Hughes, R-Allegany, Joseph V. Mach, D-Balto 2nd, Frederick C. Malkus, D-Dorchester, James A. Pine, D-Balto County, and Edward O. Weant, D-Carroll.

Topic Corrected

Beverly Smith, one of the finalists in Wednesday's Allegany High School speech contest, spoke on the subject, "The Worst In Women," not "The Worst of Women" as was reported yesterday.

House Unit Kills Plan To Limit Credit Charges

By TOM SEPPY

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Retail merchants scored a decisive victory Thursday as the House Judiciary Committee killed a proposal to regulate charges on credit accounts.

The committee voted 15-11 to send the bill to the Legislative Council for further study, a move the retailers preferred to passage of a senate-approved measure.

The merchants favored the bill when it was introduced but changed their course when the senate lowered the maximum rates on revolving credit accounts from 1½ per cent to 1 per cent a month.

Retailers also opposed a section of the bill which would have allowed them to charge only $10 for servicing installment accounts up to $1,000 and $8 for those over $1,000. They wanted $12 and $120 respectively.

Cite Data Needs

The committee approved sending the bill to the council, between sessions study group of the General Assembly, after it had restored the 1½ per cent rate to revolving credit accounts.

Many members argued that they did not have enough information to vote knowledgeably on any rate. Others feared the senate would not accept the increased rate.

Dels. James A. Wise, D-Caroline, and John N. Maguire, D-Balto County, said despite three days of hearings, they could not believe they had enough data.

"I'm not so sure that 1½ per cent is enough (for smaller merchants)," Wise said. "It's the big boys that want this rate. I don't know if it will hurt the small businessman."

Maguire said, "I don't know if I should even be voting, I don't know enough about it."

Committee Chairman Thomas Hunter Lowe, D-Talbot, teamed with those members who thought the house should pass some type of bill so that the credit field would not continue unregulated.

He argued that an attorney general's ruling would allow the merchants to charge any rate they wanted, to the detriment of the consumer public.

"We are abrogating our responsibility if we don't act on a bill which has been the topic of study by commissions for the past four years," he said.

Small Firms Oppose

A report by a governor's commission which studied credit accounts during 1961 served as the basis for the bill which was killed.

Dels. Edgar P. Silver and Sol J. Friedman, both Democrats from Baltimore's 5th District, said they were against the bill because the small merchants were opposed to it.

Silver moved that it be sent to the Legislative Council and Maguire proposed that a recommendation be attached to the motion indicating the subcommittee named to further study credit consist only of members of the General Assembly.

The committee action came shortly after Sen. James A. Pine, D-Balto County, recommended that the bill be passed with the 1 per cent maximum. Pine led the fight against the 1½ per cent rate in the senate.

Pine hinted that the senate would not accept the higher rate should the house pass it.

Clarysville Inn Faces Charge

Joseph Lyons, agent for the Clarysville Inn, who was charged on March 19 with refilling 11 liquor bottles and possession of the same will be arraigned April 5 in Federal Court in Baltimore.

He also faces a hearing April 3 before the Allegany County Alcoholic Beverage Licences Commission. The alleged violation was reported to have occurred between February 21 and September 8, 1962.

$30,000 Issue Is Holding Up State Budget

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The budget remained in a state of suspension Thursday when stiff-backed senators and delegates failed even to resume direct negotiations in their tiff over $30,000.

Tempers flared right in the office of Gov. Tawes Thursday morning between the House Judiciary chairman and the senate majority leader.

As the time rolled on relentlessly, preparations were being made seriously to extend the 90-day session, which is supposed to end next Monday.

If the budget isn't enacted Friday, the governor will be required to issue a proclamation for a special session.

It would be limited to consideration of the $606 million budget for operation of the state starting July 1.

Cannot Move

It would be necessary to hold a second special session immediately after the budget. Several money bills, including some $22 million for buildings and grounds, cannot move until the budget is cleared.

Meanwhile, the legislature could proceed with cleaning up its other work.

The impasse between the two legislative bodies is over an effort by the 29 senators to include $30,000 in the budget so they could hire clerical help between sessions.

They reported no progress after an hour's session, and since each committee vowed to stick by their guns no new conference was set Thursday.

Thursday morning, Gov. Tawes asked Chairman Marvin Mandel, D-Balto 5th, to poll his House Ways and Means Committee again.

The committee reaffirmed its position against the senate money.

The negotiations then became formal. Del. Mandel wrote and sent a note across the corridor to Sen. H. Winship Wheatley, D-Prince Georges, informing him of the house stand.

Mandel's committee suggested that if the senate insisted on its recess aid, it should do so by itself with an order.

The house was against joint action, he wrote.

Sparks Fly

There the matter lay. The governor's office was in touch with Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan to prepare the proclamation and other papers necessary for extending the session if necessary.

The sparks flew in the governor's office during his weekly meeting with legislative leaders.

Chairman Thomas H. Lowe, D-Talbot, House Judiciary chairman, bluntly told senators "If you're going to pick the pockets of the public, you're going to do it without the consent of the house."

Wheatley, who is Democratic floor leader and Senate Finance chairman, blew up.

"Do you want to tangle with me here or downstairs?" Wheatley asked pugnaciously.

"Right here, if the governor doesn't mind, or downstairs," retorted Lowe.

Goodfellowship Club Entry Is Reported

The Goodfellowship Club Inc., 214½ Virginia Avenue, was broken into early yesterday although nothing apparently was taken, police said.

They received a report of the entry about 9 a.m. yesterday. An investigation disclosed that a window was forced in the front part of the building and another window inside the building was forced open. Indications are the intruder went behind the bar and may have tampered with the safe which was not opened. Money, cigarettes and cigars were not bothered, police said.

Lane Opposes Pensions For Ex-Governors

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — Former Democratic governor William Preston Lane Jr. of Hagerstown said Thursday he was opposed to a bill before the Maryland Senate which would provide a pension for former governors.

"Since the bill applies to me personally, I am fundamentally opposed to its passage and I hope it will be defeated," Lane said.

"When I was in office, the state paid me a salary of $4,500 a year for my service. This bill proposes to pay me $4,800 a year for doing nothing. That's ridiculous."

The bill would pay former governors a pension of $1,200 a year for each year served. The bill passed the house and was being considered by the senate.

Tawes Slot

Sen. John L. Sanford Jr., D-Worcester, also going to bat for the administration, said he thought the talk of an economic impact on Southern Maryland was greatly exaggerated.

Predict Prosperity

Sanford said the slot machine industry "took over Worcester County in 1935" with illegal operations and that after being elected state's attorney in 1950, he personally ordered the operators out before the summer resort season began.

The slots folded and the county's economy prospered, Sanford said.

Sen. Mary L. Nock, from the adjoining county of Wicomico, endorsed Sanford's remarks. She said Ocean City had grown by leaps and bounds since slots were removed. She said Sanford was a very unpopular man with elements in the county at the time he cracked down, and she predicted Southern Maryland also would find its economy improved.

Sens. Parran, Hall and Raley all pleaded for more time for their counties to adjust to the loss of slot machines, which make up as much as 20 per cent of the Charles County budget plus supporting numerous business establishments.

Hall insisted it was a local matter, and not up to other senators to decide what was good for the counties concerned.

Sen. Alton said he would support the other Southern Maryland counties in their request for time but felt that it was adequate for Anne Arundel.

He said if it wasn't for interfering with the governor's statewide bill he already would have in a local bill to "drastically curb" the operations of slot machine distributors in Anne Arundel. Alton said he plans now to introduce it at the next 90-day session.

Hughes Votes

"We have to abolish these machines," Alton said. He said distributors should not have been allowed "to get as big as they are and control as much as they do today."

Supporting the amendments were Alton, Raley, Parran, Hall, John A. Derr, R-Frederick, William L. Hodges, D - Balto 6th, George R. Hughes, R-Allegany, Joseph V. Mach, D-Balto 2nd, Frederick C. Malkus, D-Dorchester, James A. Pine, D-Balto County, and Edward O. Weant, D-Carroll.

Topic Corrected

Beverly Smith, one of the finalists in Wednesday's Allegany High School speech contest, spoke on the subject, "The Worst In Women," not "The Worst of Women" as was reported yesterday.

House Unit Kills Plan To Limit Credit Charges

By TOM SEPPY

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Retail merchants scored a decisive victory Thursday as the House Judiciary Committee killed a proposal to regulate charges on credit accounts.

The committee voted 15-11 to send the bill to the Legislative Council for further study, a move the retailers preferred to passage of a senate-approved measure.

The merchants favored the bill when it was introduced but changed their course when the senate lowered the maximum rates on revolving credit accounts from 1½ per cent to 1 per cent a month.

Retailers also opposed a section of the bill which would have allowed them to charge only $10 for servicing installment accounts up to $1,000 and $8 for those over $1,000. They wanted $12 and $120 respectively.

Cite Data Needs

The committee approved sending the bill to the council, between sessions study group of the General Assembly, after it had restored the 1½ per cent rate to revolving credit accounts.

Many members argued that they did not have enough information to vote knowledgeably on any rate. Others feared the senate would not accept the increased rate.

Dels. James A. Wise, D-Caroline, and John N. Maguire, D-Balto County, said despite three days of hearings, they could not believe they had enough data.

"I'm not so sure that 1½ per cent is enough (for smaller merchants)," Wise said. "It's the big boys that want this rate. I don't know if it will hurt the small businessman."

Maguire said, "I don't know if I should even be voting, I don't know enough about it."

Committee Chairman Thomas Hunter Lowe, D-Talbot, teamed with those members who thought the house should pass some type of bill so that the credit field would not continue unregulated.

He argued that an attorney general's ruling would allow the merchants to charge any rate they wanted, to the detriment of the consumer public.

"We are abrogating our responsibility if we don't act on a bill which has been the topic of study by commissions for the past four years," he said.

Small Firms Oppose

A report by a governor's commission which studied credit accounts during 1961 served as the basis for the bill which was killed.

Dels. Edgar P. Silver and Sol J. Friedman, both Democrats from Baltimore's 5th District, said they were against the bill because the small merchants were opposed to it.

Silver moved that it be sent to the Legislative Council and Maguire proposed that a recommendation be attached to the motion indicating the subcommittee named to further study credit consist only of members of the General Assembly.

The committee action came shortly after Sen. James A. Pine, D-Balto County, recommended that the bill be passed with the 1 per cent maximum. Pine led the fight against the 1½ per cent rate in the senate.

Pine hinted that the senate would not accept the higher rate should the house pass it.

Clarysville Inn Faces Charge

Joseph Lyons, agent for the Clarysville Inn, who was charged on March 19 with refilling 11 liquor bottles and possession of the same will be arraigned April 5 in Federal Court in Baltimore.

He also faces a hearing April 3 before the Allegany County Alcoholic Beverage Licences Commission. The alleged violation was reported to have occurred between February 21 and September 8, 1962.

Ousted College Teachers Blame Book Dispute

Hardesty Says Procedure Routine, Unrelated To Academic Freedom Issue

Between 400 and 500 students of Frostburg State Teachers College held a demonstration last night in protest against what they claimed was an infringement upon the "academic freedom" of four faculty members of the college.

Three instructors, Dr. Edmund Skellings, an associate professor in the English Department, and Frank Ireland and John Cole, English instructors, said last night they had been notified their contracts would not be renewed next year. They said it happened because of their stand on certain academic issues, especially their views on three books.

The fourth, Norris Merchant, an instructor in the English Department, said last night he has been asked to resign.

R. Bowen Hardesty, college president, said the question of whether or not any faculty member's contract is renewed for the coming year is "totally unrelated to academic freedom."

The books in question are Vladimir Nabokov's "Lolita," Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer" and D. H. Lawrence's "Lady Chatterly's Lover."

Students Demonstrate

The students last night met on the campus quadrangle, where student leaders reminded them to remain orderly.

They carried signs and a dummy they identified as an effigy of President Hardesty. The group marched to the home of the college librarian, John Zimmerman on High Street, where they continued to cheer and demonstrate.

Student leaders there urged them to return to their dorms in an orderly manner.

Each year, contrasts of probationary teachers are reviewed and performance is evaluated by President Hardesty, the dean of instruction and the chairman of the department involved. If a contract is not renewed "it's never for any one reason," President Hardesty said.

Hardesty Makes Decision

Some time ago, because of controversy on campus about whether the three books shall be used in classes, President Hardesty said he made a "tentative administrative decision" to delay action on the books until he could talk to other state educators and until a special college committee could submit a definition of academic freedom for faculty approval.

He said probationary faculty members (those who have no job tenure) must be informed each April 1 if their contracts will not be renewed for the following term. He said the college is presently in the process of evaluating these teachers, but he declined to say if any had been notified their contracts would not be renewed.

However, Dr. Skillings, Mr. Cole and Mr. Ireland said last night they had received letters saying their appointments would not be renewed beyond June 30.

Tenure Explained

President Hardesty said teachers acquire tenure by holding their jobs for two to five years, depending on their ranking. Instructors and assistant professors need up to five years on the faculty to acquire tenure. Professors and associate professors with at least five years of teaching in higher education need only two years on the Frostburg faculty to achieve tenure.

Mr. Zimmerman, the librarian, said two of the books in question are presently available in the library and another is on order pending funds for purchase.

Books In Library

Mr. Zimmerman said the library attempts to honor all requests by instructors if possible. He added the novel "Lolita" has been in the library for four years and "Lady Chatterly's Lover" was added last fall at the request of an instructor.

However, he said the request for "Tropic of Cancer" has been delayed for approval of funds.

One instructor, who preferred not to be named, said there is an excessive amount of control over faculty members and that they have little or no participation in matters pertaining to decisions at the college.

He also charged that there is some lack of academic freedom because some books have been "banned" and a film concerning the Nazi war crimes trials were not allowed to be shown last year upon orders of a college official.

The instructor said some teachers have been told to control what they say in class concerning sexual behavior, and that all statements or ideas on this subject should be reviewed by the president before they are presented in class.

Administration Criticized

This teacher said he felt faculty members were not treated like adults and that the four in question were considered "good to excellent" teachers by other faculty members, and by many students.

He concluded by saying these four instructors "dared to state opinions on certain academic issues."

Trenton Busch, an instructor in the psychology department, said last night he plans to resign in protest of the four instructors who received word their contracts would not be renewed next year.

Mr. Busch wrote to President Hardesty saying, "Of course I am young and taught for four years but I feel you have made an outstanding blunder. I am especially concerned because I have a great deal of respect for Dr. Edmund Skellings.

"Moreover, I have a definite interest in poetry and I believe he (Dr. Skellings) is a very talented writer in this field. x x x I do not think this is a deliberate attempt to squelch originality and ambition in young faculty members (I would hate to believe this) but have you considered this question — what other person has brought a Pulitizer Prize winner to Frostburg State?

"How can you overlook what he has done for the prestige of the college."

Mr. Busch said he received a leave of absence yesterday but has rejected it and will resign from the college.

Instructor Gives Views

Norris Merchant, an instructor in the English Department, said last night he has been asked to submit his resignation by this morning or he will be "dismissed."

Mr. Merchant said, "In my opinion the action was one based on academic freedom despite the pretext for the action by college officials."

He charged that the three instructors involved in the incident were "let go because they introduced controversial books, speakers and dramas on the campus in an effort to convert the normal school to a liberal arts school, but the college apparently has no use for liberal ideas or liberal thinkers."

Professor Comments

Edwin V. Holland, an assistant professor in the English Department, said, "It is very strange four men have been asked to resign or have been dismissed when to my knowledge no one else on the faculty has.

"I know all four very well and support John Cole and consider him one of the finest teachers ever to come to the Frostburg campus. I consider all of them competent, dedicated and capable —a feeling shared by students who consider them among the finest teachers they have ever had."

Another instructor quoted a portion of a statement he said was made by President Hardesty in a bulletin to faculty members on March 25, which said in part:

Bulletin Is Quoted

"A question has been raised concerning the books, 'Lolita,' 'Tropic of Cancer,' and 'Lady Chatterly's Lover.' Relative to the above books some in our nation claim they have literary value while others give them credit for literary value but classify them as vulgar. During early February certain students and parents complained directly and indirectly to our office that students shouldn't be exposed to the above 'literature'."

The bulletin continued, "It seems that at a time when funds for library are difficult to obtain ($35,500 requested annually beyond regular needs and denied in part by fiscal authorities) this is not the time to rush into unwise choices of books in any area."

Teacher Not Observed

Mr. Ireland said last night "I know of no basis for complaint regarding my teaching since I have never been observed by any member of the administration. And no administrator has commented on, or criticized the quality or subject matter of my teaching.

"It is my feeling, therefore, that I'm being dismissed because I declined to satisfy the whims of a faculty member by modifying a section of a play I presented this semester. Edward Albee's play, "American Dream," is considered by many theatrical authorities as a contemporary classic. It was presented recently in its original form by Johns Hopkins University.

"The action of the administration with respect to me and my colleagues is not one I can understand. It seems far out of keeping with two American traditions: fair play and academic freedom."

When contacted yesterday afternoon in Baltimore, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, said he hadn't heard a thing about the situation at the Frostburg college.

He pointed out that in the event an instructor is discharged from the institution, charges must be preferred against the individual and presented before the State Board of Education.

Two Employers Admit Violation Of Jobless Law

Sentence Deferred In First Such Cases

Two business owners yesterday pleaded guilty to charges they violated laws pertaining to unemployment regulations.

David Caporale, 135 Polk Street, trading as David Caporale's Bakery, and Glenn A. Ford, Corriganville, who operates a well digging business, were charged with failing to file contribution and employment reports listing employes' names and wages, and also with failing to pay unemployment tax.

Magistrate Paul W. Barnett heard testimony in the cases, but deferred sentence until next Thursday.

Caporale was charged with failing to make reports for the second, third and fourth quarters in 1962, while Ford failed to make reports for two quarters in 1962.

In another unemployment case yesterday before Magistrate Barnett, Donald L. Canfield, 27, of 435 Goethe Street, pleaded guilty to making false statements to obtain $63 in unemployment benefits while he was employed at a service station.

He was fined $50 and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence on condition he make restitution within six months.

Charges in all the cases were made by Francis A. Kenney, manager of the local office of the Maryland State Department of Employment Security, and J. Victor Malloy, field representative of the agency.

Beall, Mathias Will Testify For Dam Fund

U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall and Rep. Charles McC. Mathias Jr. have promised their support for the initial $100,000 appropriation toward construction of the $51,000,000 Bloomington Dam on the North Branch of the Potomac River above Luke.

President Kennedy has included the $100,000 for Bloomington in his public works budget for fiscal year 1964 starting July 1. Total planning costs of the project will be about $1,500,000. (See early story on page 7).

Senator Beall noted in the monthly News Letter of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin that Senate committee hearings will be held in about two months. At the appropriate time, Senator Beall personally will testify in favor of the Bloomington appropriation.

"I am very much interested in this project," Senator Beall was quoted in the ICPRB News Letter. "I am doing all I can to obtain appropriations in an orderly fashion for Bloomington Dam and I will continue to do so. It is my firm belief that the project should proceed without delay."

Rep. Mathias gave assurances in the same News Letter that he, too, will testify in favor of the appropriation when House committee hearings are held, probably in June. The Frederick Republican said he strongly supports the project and will do all in his power to obtain the initial financing.

The total non-federal share of the cost of the dam is $16 million.

Wiley Ford Unit Quenches Three Fires

Twenty-five members of the Wiley Ford Volunteer Fire Company were called out twice last night to extinguish three brush fires.

The first alarm, about 6 p.m., was received after a brush fire was reported on the Oscar Flanigan farm in that community.

Firemen were called out again at 7:10 p.m. when a small brush fire was reported on the Old Furnace Road. The blaze was soon extinguished.

As firemen were returning, they were called to the Bill Cline farm near the Municipal Airport. Firemen said someone had set fire to several brush fires. To reduce fire danger, the company stood by while the brush piles burned.

Phoebus Steps Down As Senate Floor Leader

GOP Post May Be Filled Today

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Sen. Harry T. Phoebus, R - Somerset, announced Thursday that he was stepping down as minority leader in the Maryland Senate.

The 70 - year - old Republican made the announcement at the end of the senate's afternoon session.

Phoebus said he had invited the other six GOP senators to a dinner Friday afternoon so they could elect a new floor leader immediately.

"This will give one of the other Republicans a chance to promote himself," Phoebus said. "Two of them want to run for governor, two for congress, one for attorney general and one for comptroller."

Phoebus said he never recalled anyone else ever resigning as floor leader, adding that "I want to do things different than anybody else."

Is Surprise

The colorful Republican is now serving his third term as minority leader. He was a member of the House of Delegates from 1917-21, a member of the senate from 1935-37, and has served continuously in the senate since 1947.

"My wife doesn't even know about this year," Phoebus said. "When she finds out, I catch the devil. My son doesn't know it, either.

Phoebus underwent surgery last year and one eye was removed. He said Thursday that his health was all right, and was not the reason for stepping aside.

"I came here as a free man, and I hope to go out as a free man," he said. "I have no obligations to anyone except the people in Somerset County who elected me."

One of his last acts as minority leader has been to support the Democratic administration's efforts to abolish slot machines in four Southern Maryland counties.

No Hard Feelings

"I don't think it pleases the party when I take up the governor's battle," Phoebus said. "But politics mean nothing if I think a bill is right. There are no hard feelings between me and the other Republicans."

Several senators took the floor to praise Phoebus and several others shook his hand after the session.

"What difference does it make being a senator or a floor leader?" he asked. "I'll still be looking out for the people back home."

The other Republican senators include Sens. Gilbert Gude, Montgomery, Edward T. Hall, Calvert, George R. Hughes, Allegany, Spencer W. Graham, Garrett, John A. Derr, Frederick, and Josept W. Alton, Jr., Anne Arundel.

House Kills Bill To Curb 'Point Plan'

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland House of Delegates refused Thursday to prohibit a lender from charging fees on home mortgages not authorized by the state or federal law.

Del. Gerald Siegel, D-Balto 5th, argued his bill would have protected the small home buyer from "lenders skirting the usury law by a devious method."

He said home sellers as a regular practice charge the buyer special fees and what are known in the business as points. A point, he explained is equal to 1 per cent on the amount of the mortgage, and in some instances run as high as seven.

The points and other special fees are in addition to regular interest which in Maryland is limited to six per cent. Siegel said together, the regular interest on mortgages and charges exceed the maximum.

Del. James H. Caldwell, D-Wicomico, urged the house to uphold the unfavorable report of his Banking Committee, "not because there is not a germ of truth in what the delegate said, but it seems to attack the problem piecemeal."

He said there was general agreement that the practice needs investigation fully and that a resolution has been passed to that effect.

The delegates first upheld the unfavorable committee report by a voice vote and on a subsequent roll call affirmed it 77-27.

During the same session, the house tentatively approved the long standing practice of banks to charge six per cent interest in advance of the loan. There has been some doubt of the legality of the so-called discounting.

It applies only to outright borrowing of money, as contrasted to property mortgages.

Bottle Club Bill Passed By Senate

Two bills sponsored by Senator George R. Hughes Jr. have passed the Senate and are under consideration in the House.

The first, Senate Bill 639, is designed to meet objections cited by State's Attorney James S. Getty to the so-called bottle clubs.

It would make it unlawful for any person to possess or consume any alcoholic beverage in any unlicensed establishment which is open to the public and operated as a club or a place of public entertainment or a place where set-ups or other component parts of mixed alcoholic drinks are on sale.

It also makes operators of such premises subject to fines from $50 to $500 if they permit such consumption or possession of alcoholic beverages.

Senate Bill 640, introduced at the request of the LaVale Sanitary Commission, amends the original law under which the commission was formed to establish sewage rates, set up method of payments and provide penalties for non-payment of charges made in connection with sewage services.

Tawes Slot Ban Bill Is Heading Toward Victory

Senate Votes Down Three Amendments

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes' bill to abolish slot machines survived a crucial test in the Maryland Senate Thursday and headed toward probably enactment Thursday night.

The senate rejected, by a vote of 16 to 12, three amendments from its Judiciary Committee which would have required the bill to go back to the House of Delegates if adopted.

It then accepted a favorable report on the bill, 25-3, which is expected to be the measure's vote on the final passage.

The dissenters were from three of the four slot machine counties—John Thomas Parran, D-Charles, Edward T. Hall, R-Calvert, and J. Frank Raley, Jr., D-St. Marys.

Sen. Joseph W. Alton Jr., R-Anne Arundel, the other county which would be affected by the abolishment over a five-year period, voted with backers of the bill.

Is Held Over

The bill was held over to the night session to allow Parran one more opportunity to amend it. He planned to try to write in a provision for a state beer tax to help Southern Maryland counties replace the revenue they expect to lose by giving up slots.

Parran's amendment would produce more oratory but it was believed the issue had been fought out in Thursday's floor test.

The three amendments which won support of 12 senators provided: an extension of two more years, making a total of seven for the counties to get rid of their machines; July 1 instead of March 1 this year as the date on which a freeze of licenses would begin; and a requirement that no one under 21 could play slot machines, with owner-violators risking a $1,000 fine.

Majority Floor Leader H. Winship Wheatley Jr., D - Prince Georges, opposing the amendments for the Tawes Administration, said the governor wanted the bill as it was passed by the house.

Plenty Of Time

"We feel that this bill satisfies the requirements of industry and does not do injustice to the counties concerned," he said. Wheatley said if the counties prove later not to be recovering on their own from loss of revenue, there is plenty of time for the state to come to their aid.

He warned against sending the bill back to the house, where it rested for a month and caused the biggest explosion of the session before finally being passed on a reconsideration.

Only three more working days are left in the legislative session, and the house and senate are already in a dispute involving the state budget. "I don't believe it will pass the house if it is amended," Wheatley said.

Ousted College Teachers Blame Book Dispute

Hardesty Says Procedure Routine, Unrelated To Academic Freedom Issue

Between 400 and 500 students of Frostburg State Teachers College held a demonstration last night in protest against what they claimed was an infringement upon the "academic freedom" of four faculty members of the college.

Three instructors, Dr. Edmund Skellings, an associate professor in the English Department, and Frank Ireland and John Cole, English instructors, said last night they had been notified their contracts would not be renewed next year. They said it happened because of their stand on certain academic issues, especially their views on three books.

The fourth, Norris Merchant, an instructor in the English Department, said last night he has been asked to resign.

R. Bowen Hardesty, college president, said the question of whether or not any faculty member's contract is renewed for the coming year is "totally unrelated to academic freedom."

The books in question are Vladimir Nabokov's "Lolita," Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer" and D. H. Lawrence's "Lady Chatterly's Lover."

Students Demonstrate

The students last night met on the campus quadrangle, where student leaders reminded them to remain orderly.

They carried signs and a dummy they identified as an effigy of President Hardesty. The group marched to the home of the college librarian, John Zimmerman on High Street, where they continued to cheer and demonstrate.

Student leaders there urged them to return to their dorms in an orderly manner.

Each year, contrasts of probationary teachers are reviewed and performance is evaluated by President Hardesty, the dean of instruction and the chairman of the department involved. If a contract is not renewed "it's never for any one reason," President Hardesty said.

Hardesty Makes Decision

Some time ago, because of controversy on campus about whether the three books shall be used in classes, President Hardesty said he made a "tentative administrative decision" to delay action on the books until he could talk to other state educators and until a special college committee could submit a definition of academic freedom for faculty approval.

He said probationary faculty members (those who have no job tenure) must be informed each April 1 if their contracts will not be renewed for the following term. He said the college is presently in the process of evaluating these teachers, but he declined to say if any had been notified their contracts would not be renewed.

However, Dr. Skillings, Mr. Cole and Mr. Ireland said last night they had received letters saying their appointments would not be renewed beyond June 30.

Tenure Explained

President Hardesty said teachers acquire tenure by holding their jobs for two to five years, depending on their ranking. Instructors and assistant professors need up to five years on the faculty to acquire tenure. Professors and associate professors with at least five years of teaching in higher education need only two years on the Frostburg faculty to achieve tenure.

Mr. Zimmerman, the librarian, said two of the books in question are presently available in the library and another is on order pending funds for purchase.

Books In Library

Mr. Zimmerman said the library attempts to honor all requests by instructors if possible. He added the novel "Lolita" has been in the library for four years and "Lady Chatterly's Lover" was added last fall at the request of an instructor.

However, he said the request for "Tropic of Cancer" has been delayed for approval of funds.

One instructor, who preferred not to be named, said there is an excessive amount of control over faculty members and that they have little or no participation in matters pertaining to decisions at the college.

He also charged that there is some lack of academic freedom because some books have been "banned" and a film concerning the Nazi war crimes trials were not allowed to be shown last year upon orders of a college official.

The instructor said some teachers have been told to control what they say in class concerning sexual behavior, and that all statements or ideas on this subject should be reviewed by the president before they are presented in class.

Administration Criticized

This teacher said he felt faculty members were not treated like adults and that the four in question were considered "good to excellent" teachers by other faculty members, and by many students.

He concluded by saying these four instructors "dared to state opinions on certain academic issues."

Trenton Busch, an instructor in the psychology department, said last night he plans to resign in protest of the four instructors who received word their contracts would not be renewed next year.

Mr. Busch wrote to President Hardesty saying, "Of course I am young and taught for four years but I feel you have made an outstanding blunder. I am especially concerned because I have a great deal of respect for Dr. Edmund Skellings.

Senator Beall noted in the monthly News Letter of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin that Senate committee hearings will be held in about two months. At the appropriate time, Senator Beall personally will testify in favor of the Bloomington appropriation.

"I am very much interested in this project," Senator Beall was quoted in the ICPRB News Letter. "I am doing all I can to obtain appropriations in an orderly fashion for Bloomington Dam and I will continue to do so. It is my firm belief that the project should proceed without delay."

Rep. Mathias gave assurances in the same News Letter that he, too, will testify in favor of the appropriation when House committee hearings are held, probably in June. The Frederick Republican said he strongly supports the project and will do all in his power to obtain the initial financing.

The total non-federal share of the cost of the dam is $16 million.

Wiley Ford Unit Quenches Three Fires

Twenty-five members of the Wiley Ford Volunteer Fire Company were called out twice last night to extinguish three brush fires.

The first alarm, about 6 p.m., was received after a brush fire was reported on the Oscar Flanigan farm in that community.

Firemen were called out again at 7:10 p.m. when a small brush fire was reported on the Old Furnace Road. The blaze was soon extinguished.

As firemen were returning, they were called to the Bill Cline farm near the Municipal Airport. Firemen said someone had set fire to several brush fires. To reduce fire danger, the company stood by while the brush piles burned.

Phoebus Steps Down As Senate Floor Leader

GOP Post May Be Filled Today

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Sen. Harry T. Phoebus, R - Somerset, announced Thursday that he was stepping down as minority leader in the Maryland Senate.

The 70 - year - old Republican made the announcement at the end of the senate's afternoon session.

Phoebus said he had invited the other six GOP senators to a dinner Friday afternoon so they could elect a new floor leader immediately.

"This will give one of the other Republicans a chance to promote himself," Phoebus said. "Two of them want to run for governor, two for congress, one for attorney general and one for comptroller."

Phoebus said he never recalled anyone else ever resigning as floor leader, adding that "I want to do things different than anybody else."

Is Surprise

The colorful Republican is now serving his third term as minority leader. He was a member of the House of Delegates from 1917-21, a member of the senate from 1935-37, and has served continuously in the senate since 1947.

"My wife doesn't even know about this year," Phoebus said. "When she finds out, I catch the devil. My son doesn't know it, either.

Phoebus underwent surgery last year and one eye was removed. He said Thursday that his health was all right, and was not the reason for stepping aside.

"I came here as a free man, and I hope to go out as a free man," he said. "I have no obligations to anyone except the people in Somerset County who elected me."

One of his last acts as minority leader has been to support the Democratic administration's efforts to abolish slot machines in four Southern Maryland counties.

No Hard Feelings

"I don't think it pleases the party when I take up the governor's battle," Phoebus said. "But politics mean nothing if I think a bill is right. There are no hard feelings between me and the other Republicans."

Several senators took the floor to praise Phoebus and several others shook his hand after the session.

"What difference does it make being a senator or a floor leader?" he asked. "I'll still be looking out for the people back home."

The other Republican senators include Sens. Gilbert Gude, Montgomery, Edward T. Hall, Calvert, George R. Hughes, Allegany, Spencer W. Graham, Garrett, John A. Derr, Frederick, and Josept W. Alton, Jr., Anne Arundel.

House Kills Bill To Curb 'Point Plan'

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland House of Delegates refused Thursday to prohibit a lender from charging fees on home mortgages not authorized by the state or federal law.

Del. Gerald Siegel, D-Balto 5th, argued his bill would have protected the small home buyer from "lenders skirting the usury law by a devious method."

He said home sellers as a regular practice charge the buyer special fees and what are known in the business as points. A point, he explained is equal to 1 per cent on the amount of the mortgage, and in some instances run as high as seven.

The points and other special fees are in addition to regular interest which in Maryland is limited to six per cent. Siegel said together, the regular interest on mortgages and charges exceed the maximum.

Del. James H. Caldwell, D-Wicomico, urged the house to uphold the unfavorable report of his Banking Committee, "not because there is not a germ of truth in what the delegate said, but it seems to attack the problem piecemeal."

He said there was general agreement that the practice needs investigation fully and that a resolution has been passed to that effect.

The delegates first upheld the unfavorable committee report by a voice vote and on a subsequent roll call affirmed it 77-27.

During the same session, the house tentatively approved the long standing practice of banks to charge six per cent interest in advance of the loan. There has been some doubt of the legality of the so-called discounting.

It applies only to outright borrowing of money, as contrasted to property mortgages.

Bottle Club Bill Passed By Senate

Two bills sponsored by Senator George R. Hughes Jr. have passed the Senate and are under consideration in the House.

The first, Senate Bill 639, is designed to meet objections cited by State's Attorney James S. Getty to the so-called bottle clubs.

It would make it unlawful for any person to possess or consume any alcoholic beverage in any unlicensed establishment which is open to the public and operated as a club or a place of public entertainment or a place where set-ups or other component parts of mixed alcoholic drinks are on sale.

It also makes operators of such premises subject to fines from $50 to $500 if they permit such consumption or possession of alcoholic beverages.

Senate Bill 640, introduced at the request of the LaVale Sanitary Commission, amends the original law under which the commission was formed to establish sewage rates, set up method of payments and provide penalties for non-payment of charges made in connection with sewage services.

Stump Fire Checked

Volunteer firemen of Cresaptown last night checked a fire in a stump near the Mason Dairy on Winchester Road. The call was received at 10:25 a.m.

Tawes Slot Ban Bill Is Heading Toward Victory

Senate Votes Down Three Amendments

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes' bill to abolish slot machines survived a crucial test in the Maryland Senate Thursday and headed toward probably enactment Thursday night.

The senate rejected, by a vote of 16 to 12, three amendments from its Judiciary Committee which would have required the bill to go back to the House of Delegates if adopted.

It then accepted a favorable report on the bill, 25-3, which is expected to be the measure's vote on the final passage.

The dissenters were from three of the four slot machine counties—John Thomas Parran, D-Charles, Edward T. Hall, R-Calvert, and J. Frank Raley, Jr., D-St. Marys.

Sen. Joseph W. Alton Jr., R-Anne Arundel, the other county which would be affected by the abolishment over a five-year period, voted with backers of the bill.

Is Held Over

The bill was held over to the night session to allow Parran one more opportunity to amend it. He planned to try to write in a provision for a state beer tax to help Southern Maryland counties replace the revenue they expect to lose by giving up slots.

Parran's amendment would produce more oratory but it was believed the issue had been fought out in Thursday's floor test.

The three amendments which won support of 12 senators provided: an extension of two more years, making a total of seven for the counties to get rid of their machines; July 1 instead of March 1 this year as the date on which a freeze of licenses would begin; and a requirement that no one under 21 could play slot machines, with owner-violators risking a $1,000 fine.

Majority Floor Leader H. Winship Wheatley Jr., D - Prince Georges, opposing the amendments for the Tawes Administration, said the governor wanted the bill as it was passed by the house.

Plenty Of Time

"We feel that this bill satisfies the requirements of industry and does not do injustice to the counties concerned," he said. Wheatley said if the counties prove later not to be recovering on their own from loss of revenue, there is plenty of time for the state to come to their aid.

He warned against sending the bill back to the house, where it rested for a month and caused the biggest explosion of the session before finally being passed on a reconsideration.

Only three more working days are left in the legislative session, and the house and senate are already in a dispute involving the state budget. "I don't believe it will pass the house if it is amended," Wheatley said.
